BIG CHARLESTOWN FIRE

WITNESS FOUND IN NEW YORK

A new witness, a man who was for years the confidant and friend of Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, was interviewed in New York today by Attorneys William A. Morse and Francis J. Geogan, counsel for Mrs. Eaton who is accused of the Admiral's death by poison.

That this man has known undisclosed facts regarding Admiral Eaton's life was discovered by detectives several days ago. These facts, presented to the attorneys for the defence, impressed them as being of such importance that both decided to go to New York at once.

Mrs. Eaton was first consulted. The attorneys refused to say what she told them of her husband's friendship with the New York man. They did say, however, that she agreed he had been one of her husband's best friends.

This New York man, it was learned, visited Admiral Eaton at Rockland less than a year ago.

To Explain Strange Remarks.

Here are some of the things upon which it was expected the New York man could throw light:

The romance of Mrs. Eaton and the Admiral—that romance which stirred the innermost circles of Washington society and which involved, it is said, persons whose names have not figured in the case.

The reason why Admiral Eaton, whose pension amounted to about $15 a day, was nevertheless always in need of money.

The explanation of some of the strange utterances of Admiral Eaton which are said to have shown he feared death by poison.

Attorneys Morse and Geogan communicated with District Attorney Barker before leaving for New York. Shortly afterward, he announced that the inquest into the death of Admiral Eaton would be resumed in Bingham next week.

Whether the attorneys told District Attorney Barker the nature of the evidence they expected to secure in New York is not known. But his immediate announcement that the inquest would be resumed is considered significant.

The New York man whose story is expected to shed so much new light on the mysterious case has stated to friends there that he did not wish to figure in the case at all. He added, however, that

12 DIE, 400 ILL OF EPIDEMIC IN CANTON

The State Board of Health has taken charge of the tonsilitis epidemic in Canton, where twelve persons have died and 400 of the 4,000 inhabitants are ill from using impure milk.

Two new cases were reported today from the neighboring town of Sharon. The public schools are closed.

Two persons died today. They were Mrs. Mabel Farrington Baldwin, fifty-three, of Highland street, one of the best known society women of the town, and the young son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dykes of Washington street.

Dr. Mark W. Richardson of the State Board of Health today sent out a statement blaming the Canton Board of Health for failure to aid the State milk inspector, Dr. William H. Walcott, in his work to prevent the spread of the contagion.

The State Board also sent a letter to Charles H. French, Jr., of Canton, forbidding him to distribute any more milk from his dairy until it has been passed upon by Dr. Walcott.

The Canton Board of Health, surprised at the unprecedented action of the State board, maintains it has taken all precautions. It declares, through Abner Morse, its oldest member, that the State board is as much in the air as to the cause of the epidemic as the Canton board.

"We don't wish to have any quarrel with the State board," said Mr. Morse today, "but the members of our board do not feel that we have been negligent in dealing with the situation."

Meanwhile Mrs. Nelson Marrs of Silverman street and Mr. Rivell of Neponset street are not expected to live. The local health authorities have ordered immediate burial for the two persons who died today. Public funerals are forbidden.

The board has also ordered that premises where deaths have occurred be fumigated without delay.

Many patients have been removed to the Boston City Hospital for treatment. Among them are Mrs. Henry Appel and two children of Rockland street, Arthur LaFavor, a local barber, and Mrs. Frank Bilham of Washington street.

2 COLLEGE GIRLS ARE ARRESTED

Wellesley college girls are stirred over the arrest and arraignment of two of their number on the charge of trespassing on the property of Dr. Michael J. Fenton, a Boston dentist. According to their friends, the two girls—Misses Bessie F. Graham and Ellen G. Howard—were out taking a Sunday afternoon stroll when they were told they would be arrested.

In the Dedham District Court the two girls—both of whom are juniors—pleaded nolo and the cases were filed. The arrests were the fourth and fifth made since Dr. Fenton placed up "No Trespassing Allowed" signs on his property.

Tells Story to President.

The two Juniors told their story to President Pendleton of the college and later announced to their friends that they had been suppressed into court. This aroused the keen indignation of practically the entire student body.

"Why, just think of it," said one. "It's perfectly absurd the way it happened."

"Girls, don't go near Fenton's," said another, "or you'll be nipped."

According to the girls' story, they were walking along the Metropolitan aqueduct which was formerly a favorite with all the students for their Sunday afternoon "hikes." They said that Dr. Fenton ran in their direction, calling to them to stop. The dentist called to a watchman who is employed to keep off trespassers and take care of the property.

Frightened Two Juniors.

The two juniors were frightened and declared they did not know they could be called trespassers.

The arrests attracted the notice of the entire town of Wellesley. Some of the townspeople claimed they have a right to walk along the aqueduct, but Dr. Fenton declares that he has certain rights which must be respected. The previous arrests for trespass were those of Dwight Jacobs, a student at the Newton Textile School; J. J. Rafferty, a well-known Boston insurance man, and Eugene George of Wellesley.

The Wellesley girls have held several "indignation" meetings, but refused to reveal what they have decided to do about the arrest and their Sunday afternoon strolls.

CARNATION DAY IN LYNN SWELLS NURSING FUND

Carnation Day was held in Lynn today when 300 boys and girls dressed in white circulated throughout the city in seventy-five automobiles invading the business houses, banks and factories selling carnations. The proceeds are devoted to furnishing visiting nurses for the poor of the city. The affair was held under the auspices of the Lynn Visiting Nurses Association and in charge of Mrs. Carolyn M. Engler. It is estimated that over 25,000 flowers were sold, one bringing the record price of twenty dollars.

FR. SUPPLE TAKEN ILL SAYING MASS

While the Rev. David G. Supple, D. D., curate of the Immaculate Conception, Malden, was celebrating mass today, he was taken suddenly ill with locomotor ataxia and assisted to the rectory by the Rev. W. J. Casey, another curate of the parish. Fr. Supple is a graduate of the American College at Rome, where he took his degree and is widely known among the clergy of the archdiocese.

SEEKS $1,500 FOR KISS IN BAKE SHOP

PORTLAND, Me., May 10.—Miss Evelyn M. Dodge has brought a suit against George R. Letourneau, proprietor of a bakery, to recover $1,500 for kissing her against her will. She claims that he came up behind her in the cellar of the bakery, threw his arms about her and kissed her.

HARVARD BOAT RACE FAVORITE

With thousands of persons on deck to see the first college rowing race of the season, the eights of Harvard, Princeton and Pennsylvania got away on their mile and seven-eighth race this afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock.

The three shells came down to the starting line from their boathouses up the river only a short time before the call to start. After some waiting the crews took their positions, Penn on the Boston side of the river, Harvard in the middle and Princeton on the Cambridge side.

The water at the starting point was fairly smooth but further down in the basin the wind had kicked up the water and it was evident that the washboards on the shells would come in very handy.

For the first time in years Pennsylvania is pitted against a Harvard crew in this race and the finish promised to be close. The work of the men in the boats was closely watched, as the race gave the coaches and critics their first real opportunity to size up the calibre of the material on hand for the big races that are to follow.

Thousands of persons lined the Esplanade and other points along the Charles River Basin to watch the boats as they come down the river to the finish line, while hundreds of autoists followed the stroke along the riverbank.

The race was over a mile and seven-eighths course, starting close to the Cottage Farm Bridge, with the finishing line in the basin, just past the Union Boat Club. The event was scheduled to start at 5 o'clock.

The crews were fairly well matched, although Harvard appeared to have the edge. All three were trained to the minute.

Yale and Cornell were especially interested in the outcome of the struggle this afternoon and representatives of both these colleges arrived in Boston today to inspect the Harvard crew in action.

TWO KILLED AND TWO INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

BRANDORD, Ct., May 10.—Two persons were instantly killed and two injured when a seven-passengers automobile, owned and driven by Donald G. Perkins, a prominent lawyer of Norfolk, plunged off the turnpike and down a bank about a mile east of here at 12:30 o'clock today.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins were thrown from the front seat and struck on their heads in the meadow, dying almost instantly. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers of Norwich, were thrown from the rear seat and Mrs. Rogers was seriously hurt. Mr. Rogers was able to summon help.

KNIFE WIELDER HELD IN $500

For slashing John Common with a knife, George Patsevavitch was held in $500 bonds for the next sitting of the Grand Jury in the South Boston District Court. Common, much patched up, testified that he met Patsevavitch on A and Silver streets and that after an argument Patsevavitch drew a knife and cut him. Dr. William J. Sheehan of West Broadway, who attended Common, testified the man might have died had it not been for prompt medical attention.

KING OF NEW YORK'S CHINATOWN IS DEAD

NEW YORK, May 10.—"Chuck" Connor, known from coast to coast as "King of Chinatown," died today from heart disease in the Hudson Street Hospital. Connor's real name was George Washington Connor and he was one of the most picturesque characters the Bowery ever produced. For years he made a living by acting as guide for parties of Chinatown tourists.

VACATION DAYS FOR COLEMAN ARE EXTENDED

George W. Coleman, looter of the National City Bank of Cambridge, is to remain in Boston until next Thursday to testify in the suit of Receiver Bates against President Edwin Dresser and other directors of the bank. The original habeas corpus writ in which Coleman was brought to Boston expires at midnight tonight, but today Judge Morton in the United States District Court extended it until next Thursday. This was the third renewal of the original writ.

Coleman spent today in his cell at the East Cambridge jail. It has become known that Coleman has testified that President Dresser was one of the heaviest losers in the collapse of the bank. President Dresser had $30,000 on deposit, according to the books, when Coleman died. Almost all that money was lost. Frank A. Kennedy, a wealthy Vermont man, was the largest depositor at the time of the crash, having $74,000 to his credit. Coleman stole a large part of this sum.

Coleman will remain his cell until Monday morning when he will be taken to room 903 in the Suffolk courthouse. There will be no hearing Monday. Coleman will spend the entire day going over his bank's books and accounts. The hearing will be resumed Wednesday, and may last into Thursday. Then it will be suspended until the latter part of June. Coleman will be returned to the Green field jail.

United States Judge Edgar Aldrich, who has been asked by the AMERICAN to suggest to Master Harris the opening of the doors at the hearing to the public, has replied from New Hampshire that he will send an early answer to the request.

PUBLIC HEARING TO DECIDE ON STREET FUND QUESTION

The public will be given an opportunity to voice opinions as to whether the $600,000 which will be available for street improvements should be borrowed inside or outside of the debt limit at a hearing which the committee on finance will give on next Wednesday. There is widespread interest in the question. The hearing, which will be held in the old aldermanic chamber at City Hall, will be attended by representatives of all of the improvement associations. Mayor Fitzgerald favors the money being borrowed outside of the debt limit, while the majority of the City Council are credited with favoring the loan inside the debt limit.

NEW STATE PIER IS TO BE READY

The strike of 200 or more workmen at the new Commonwealth Pier having been settled, there is nothing to interfere with its practical completion in time to receive the Hamburg-American liner Cincinnati, which leaves Hamburg May 21 and is due to arrive at the new pier on May 31. The Cincinnati has a capacity of 3,500 passengers and on her first trip from Boston on June 7 will carry probably 2,000 passengers compared with about 800 on trip to this port.

3 ALARMS AS FLAMES SWEEP MYSTIC WHARF

A three-alarm fire at the Export Lumber Company yards, at Mystic Wharf, Charlestown, is raging. The flames threatened two large square-rigged schooners tied up at the pier. The fire swept through the lumber yards in the direction of the water and gained rapid headway.

The first alarm was sounded at 1:56 o'clock from Box 433 and the third four minutes later.

Two fireboats assisted fire apparatus from Boston and Somerville in fighting the flames.

The two schooners which were in danger were both loaded with lumber consigned to South American ports. The sheds in which the flames started were one and a half stories high and were filled to the roof with lumber.

The fire started on the waterfront about a quarter of a mile from the Mystic Yard office, and rapidly spread in the direction of the Hamburg-American and Calcutta line wharves. Piers 45, 46, 47, 48, 49 and 50 were also endangered. None of the Hamburg-American or Calcutta Company liners happened to be at either wharf.

SUBMARINES RUSH ORDERS AS NAVY TEST

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The rush orders given for the departure of the submarine flotilla from Newport, R. I., early today were in line with the general policy of the navy to make vigorous tests of the efficiency of all branches of the service. Acting Secretary Roosevelt made the following statement regarding the maneuvers:

"The department is much pleased with the celerity with which the submarines got away from Newport. There is no harder test of the general state of efficiency in the navy than an emergency order of this kind sent out in time of peace, when no possible idea of a hurry call to duty could be expected. The record made by the submarines is highly gratifying and shows a high state of efficiency and preparedness is being maintained. The submarines were to be ordered to Norfolk, for certain repairs and alterations and this opportunity was taken to test their ability to get under way at short notice."

WINTHROP FOLKS MADE HAPPY BY GOVERNOR'S ACTION

The citizens of Winthrop are rejoicing. Governor Foss has signed two measures which deeply affect them. One provides for reimbursing the town of Winthrop $8,000 for the cost of the sea wall at Short Beach. The other is a bill appropriating $75,000 for the further development of Boston Harbor. As the result of the enactment of this measure, it is probable that the Port Directors will dredge the Winthrop channel.

TO DEMONSTRATE TAX ASSESSING

Councilor Earnest R. Smith, who has had the Somers system of assessing property demonstrated for the past two days to the City Council and others interested in taxation declared that he will endeavor to have Lawson Purdy, the New York tax expert, come here and demonstrate the assessing system used in New York.

DOCTOR ON TRIAL AS GIRL'S SLAYER

AUBURN, Me., May 10.—Witnesses today at the trial of Dr. Charles K. Deane of Lewiston, charged with the murder of Emma E. Hall, seventeen, declared an operation alleged to have been performed was unnecessary.

RESUME EATON INQUEST WITH NEW WITNESS

If the attorneys for Mrs. Eaton wished him to come to Hingham and tell his story, he would be glad to do so, and would be glad to aid in every possible way in clearing up some of the points which are still mysterious.

Attorney Morse and Attorney Geogan, before their departure, had a long conference with Mrs. Eaton in the Plymouth County Jail. Mrs. Eaton has from the first aided the attorneys by notes and by conferences in which she guided their investigation of the case.

Name Is Kept Secret.

When she heard that this New York man was ready to tell his story, she became more cheerful than she had been at any time during the past few days. Her demeanor since the first days of her confinement had undergone a change, and although she was always cheerful, her face showed signs of the strain under which she suffered. The news the attorneys brought, however, seemed to relieve this strain.

The name of the New York man has not been made public at Hingham, although it is whispered among the attorneys. It is said this man is well-known in naval circles, and that he was in the Boston hotel at Norfolk and Washington at the time that Admiral and Mrs. Eaton spent their time there.

From the beginning of the case, Mrs. Eaton has maintained her innocence, and the attorneys on both sides have admitted that the case was surrounded with mystery. Therefore it is supposed by purpose today when the announcement was made that the New York man could tell something of Admiral Eaton's life and associations which would shed light on a possible new motive for the murder of the Admiral.

Admiral Eaton, it is alleged, was poisoned with arsenic, which was administered to him at table, either in the tea or coffee which he drank. From the first, the State and defence have sought to identify every person who could possibly have had access to the food served at the meals in the Eaton household. So many different persons were in a position to administer the poison that this line of work has been tedious, but it has brought forth many new facts unrevealed in the earlier stages of the investigation. The story of the New York man, it is expected, will turn this investigation in a definite direction.

Mrs. Eaton Cheered.

It was this fact which cheered Mrs. Eaton, when her attorneys told her of it in the jail.

Mrs. Eaton, since her incarceration, has been a moving spirit in the work of the defense attorneys. Her consultations with the attorneys have been almost daily. She has written scores of letters to them, to her two daughters, and to her friends in Washington and New York.

Attorneys Morse and Geogan did not know when they hurriedly left for New York, how long they would be kept there. They did not intend to take a deposition from the New York man, but planned to have a long talk with him, informally seeking new light on the mystery.

After this talk, they expected he would consent to come to Boston and appear at the inquest when it is resumed next week.

Borden Girl Is Reported Missing Again

NEW YORK, May 10.—Miss Ramona Borden, seventeen years old, daughter of Gail Borden, multimillionaire New York milk dealer, whose mysterious disappearance from a New Jersey sanitarium several weeks ago caused a big sensation, is today reported to be missing again.

Credence was given the report by announcement at the Vanderbilt Hotel, where Mrs. Borden and her daughter have been living, that both left the hotel, and that their present whereabouts are unknown.

The first hint that Ramona had run away again came from New Haven, Ct., to which place she had gone with Mrs. Helen Selden White, wife of a rich Cleveland, O., chewing gum manufacturer, on her recent runaway escapade. A dispatch from New Haven reported that a woman answering Mrs. White's description met two young girls at the railway station there, the party going to a hotel where they registered as "Mrs. W. J. White, Niagara Falls, N. Y., and daughter."

One of the girls answered the description to Miss Borden, the other resembled one of Mrs. White's friends who was a member of the previous runaway party. When Mrs. White was approached in New Haven by reporters she denied that she was the same woman who conulved at the Borden girl's escape from the sanitarium.

At the offices of Mr. Borden it was said today by Mr. Borden's secretary that the girl's father needs no knowledge of her being in New Haven. Mr. and Mrs. Borden are separated but not divorced. Mrs. Borden is living alone in Los Angeles, Cal., but came here when she received news of her daughter's mysterious disappearance several weeks ago.

Friends of Miss Borden cast doubt upon reports of her disappearance. It was said that Miss Borden left New York on Thursday accompanied by her mother, and that they flew direct from here to Los Angeles. Mrs. Borden and Miss Borden are said to have reached Chicago yesterday.

"Sonnie" Is Sick; Appeal to Mother for Baby's Sake

Mrs. N. Perkins of Irvington, N. Y., has written one of the most pathetic letters that the police of Boston police headquarters have received for some time, appealing to her daughter, Mrs. Florence Carruth, whom she believes is in Boston, to return home to her two-year-old boy "Sonnie."

Mrs. Carruth, twenty-three years old, has been missing since March 5. She wrote one letter to her mother postmarked Boston, saying she had a fine position. But the letter contained no address.

Mrs. Perkins' letter as given out by the police reads:

To the Press—Florence, please come home to "Sonnie." He has been very sick and always asking for mother. Billy has gone West since you left, so for "Sonnie's" sake come home. He needs you. He is sick and not able to look after him. You have broken my heart, but I forgive you for what you have done.

All that I ask is to come home to your little boy. How can you stay away from him? Write to Baldwin, telling him where you are, addressing your letter to Wells Fargo Express Company to reach him.

FEDERAL PRINTERS VOICE PROTESTS

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Because of numerous transfers in the linotype force of the government printing office, which carry a reduction in salary, the employes of the linotype division, held a meeting and unanimously adopted resolutions voicing their protests "Against an unjust, unfair, inaccurate, and oppressive system which denies to them the right to know how these averages are computed and requirements necessary to obtain a fair and accurate rating."

CHAMBER PARTY INSPECT WARSHIP

About 225 members of the "under 40" division of the Boston Chamber of Commerce today inspected the new Argentine dreadnaught Rivadavia and the foundries and shops of the Fore River Ship Yard at Quincy upon the invitation of Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles.

The members were taken down on one of the Revere Beach ferry boats.

'HEAVEN AND HELL,' RUSSELL'S TOPIC

"Heaven, Hell and Purgatory" will be the subject that Rev. C. T. Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle will speak on tomorrow afternoon in the Boston Theatre. Pastor Russell has preached here at different times for the past two years and the response is so great that hundreds are turned away at every lecture.

GRAND JURY SENDS IN 29 TRUE BILLS

The Suffolk County Grand Jury reported twenty-nine true bills and twelve no bills to Judge Brown today. Among the true bills was an indictment against John Lindsay, charged with gaining unlawful support from his wife, Florence Lindsay, formerly of Philadelphia.

Tobacco Habit Easily Conquered

A well-known New Yorker, who has had wide experience, has written a book telling how the tobacco or snuff habit may be easily banished in three days without any return of the craving.

The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, manly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many reported. No more of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigar, cigarette or chewing tobacco to pacify the morbid desire. The author, Edw. J. Woods, 534 Sixth Ave., 30th St., New York City, will send his book free on application, to anyone who writes to him.

VETS TO RAISE $40,000 FOR MAINE SHAFT

At the annual convention of the National Commandery of the Naval and Military order of Spanish American War today it was voted to refer to the National Council with full power to act, the recommendation that all the State commanderies be asked to contribute toward the $40,000 needed to complete the Maine Memorial Monument which is to be dedicated in New York, May 30.

William Randolph Hearst has offered to pay a dollar for every dollar raised so that it will be necessary only to raise an additional $20,000.

The national council held a special session on the State Constitution and drafted an official appeal for funds for the Maine Memorial.

The National Commandery of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish American War in its vote today recommended also that the State commanderies appeal to other military and patriotic organizations to help in this worthy cause.

This was the second day of the convention which met at the First Corps Cadet armory on Columbus avenue.

Elect Officers.

The following national council officers were elected: Commander-in-chief, Lieutenant John S. Muckle, Pennsylvania; senior vice-commander, Lieutenant Fred E. Standish, Michigan; junior vice-commander, Colonel Guy Nelen, Texas; recorder-in-chief, Major Frank Keck, New York; registrar-in-chief, Lieutenant-Colonel F. W. M. Bailey, Massachusetts; department registrar-in-chief, Lieutenant C. R. Perry, Illinois; treasurer-in-chief, Lieutenant-Colonel George Cole, Connecticut; chaplain-in-chief, P. B. Murphy, South Boston; historian-in-chief, Captain Cassily Cook, New York; councillor-in-chief, Major Felix Rosenberg, Cleveland, O.; councillors, Major Robert Lee Longstreet, District of Columbia; Captain Charles N. Machold, Pennsylvania; Captain Taylor Brown, Illinois; and Captain W. Tyson Romaine, New York.

Sail Down Harbor.

Adjournment was taken at 11:30 p. m., and the delegates adjourned to their apartments at the Parker House. At noon they went to the Charlestown Navy Yard, and after a full inspection had lunch on the U. S. S. Constitution.

At 2:30 they sailed down to Fort Warren in the tender Batchelder and inspected the key to the harbor fortifications.

Councillor-in-Chief Rosenberg was interested in the visit to the fort because it revived memories of the day when he was a federal prisoner at Fort Warren.

Tonight the annual banquet is to be held at the Copley-Plaza.

KEEPS OUT BUYERS OF HOME WITH GUN

BROOKFIELD, May 10.—Because the money he sold his house for was paid over in his wife, Charles H. Batchelder, an aged Civil War veteran, has barricaded himself in his Potopoag home and with a loaded shotgun defies the purchaser, W. H. House of Palmer, to take possession. Mr. House's household goods, a lot of farming tools and some hens were unloaded in the yard. He says he is ready to camp out for the seven days necessary for a notice of eviction to be served.

SNAIL WINS RACE ON LINER AT ODDS OF FORTY TO ONE

NEW YORK, May 10.—An exciting race between edible snails took place aboard the steamer France during her voyage from Havre to this port. Twenty-five snails were placed upon a circular piece of pasteboard that measured four feet in diameter. In the center was placed a lilac bush, on the top of which hung a bunch of lettuce.

The passengers were invited to place a number on the shell of their favorite snail and back it for all they cared to risk. It took the snails one hour, two minutes and nine seconds to reach the lilac bush. The winner was a rank outsider, odds of forty to one having been laid against him.

SATURDAY NO SESSION HALTS SCHOOL STRIKE

There is little evidence of the school strike today. No new developments are looked for until Monday, School officials say that the trouble is over, and that there will be a normal attendance on Monday. In spite of this, Representative John J. Murphy of South Boston, who introduced an order calling for legislative investigation of the strike, is determined to go to the bottom of the trouble. He said today:

"I proposed the order simply as a means of getting at the causes underlying the present epidemic of unrest among the children in the schools and as a means of preventing similar outbreaks in the future. The children are taking advantage of the present juvenile delinquent law. Apparently they understand that under the present law they are immune from punishment. As the law is at present neither parents nor children are as regardful of the rights of others as they would be under a proper enforcement of the law.

"I myself believe that the blame for the acts of the children in this present strike should be attached to the parents. The fact that large crowds of restless and unruly boys and girls are sorry to say, girls as well—had caused acts of violence at night in the destruction of school property shows that the parents are to blame. I think the proper remedy lies in the passage and enforcement of a curfew law by means of which children under the age of sixteen years may be kept off the streets at night.

"The apparent lack of energy and lack of ambition shown by so many of our boys and girls can be traced to the neglect of the parents, or, worse still, to the over-indulgence of the parents in regard to the wants and desires of their children. I feel that for every pane of glass that was broken in the strike, one mother's heart will go broken later when that boy or girl causes her anguish through a court record.

HOLD GARAGE MAN AT SOUTH BOSTON IN GASOLINE CASE

Well-to-do residents of the section about No. 788 East Broadway, South Boston, showed much interest in the case against Frederick Sharpe, proprietor of a garage at that number, who was found guilty in the South Boston District Court today and fined $25 for keeping more than ten gallons of gasoline in his place without a license to do so.

Arthur Keating of the district police testified that he went to Sharpe's garage and found eleven automobiles and one motorcycle there, and that each machine contained gasoline. Sharpe's place of business is located in a well to do section of South Boston, where his neighbors, living in the old family residences there, have objected to the presence of the garage. The garage occupies a building which was formerly a private stable. Sharpe has made three applications for a license to keep more than ten gallons of gasoline allowed by the law, but each time his application has been refused. It is said because of protests by South Boston citizens residing near the garage.

Sharpe appealed the decision of Judge Fallon and gave $200 bonds.

BROTHERS MARKED BY INCENDIARY

WOODSVILLE, N. H., May 10.—Haverhill is excited over the repeated attempts by firebugs against the property of the Page brothers, Charles and Frank. The former's buildings were burned recently, the barns being so securely fastened that it was impossible to get out any of the stock or contents. A few weeks previous, the buildings of Frank Page were destroyed by fire. Detectives have been engaged to investigate the mystery.

TITANIC WIDOW MOURNS IN WHITE

WASHINGTON, May 10.—"White Widow of the Titanic" is the title Mrs. Lucien D. Smith, the bereaved girl wife of one of the heroes of the disaster, has worn through wearing white mourning instead of black. On the anniversary of the sinking of the Titanic, Mrs. Smith put aside her black clothes.

DUCHESS OF WESTMINSTER ASKS DIVORCE

LONDON, May 10.—The lovely Duchess of Westminster has brought a cross-suit for divorce, it is stated authoritatively.

Her husband is his suit names the Duke of Alba, a descendant of King James II. of England, and an intimate friend of King Alfonso of Spain.

These suits explain why the Duke of Westminster, an ardent polo player, did not go to America to play in the international polo match next month, although he financed the team almost prodigally, scouring the world for good ponies and paying any price for them.

The Duke has been particularly attentive to Miss Gertie Miller, a star of George Edwardes' Company, who was much admired in America. Miss Miller's husband, Lionel Monckton, the composer, threatened a suit for divorce, but did not bring it.

Plainly King George and Queen Mary sympathize with the Duchess of Westminster. Their Majesties snubbed the Duke when they visited Chester recently. Nor was that the first time they had manifested their displeasure to him.

The AMERICAN announced as far back as March 15 last that the Westminster suits had impended since the Duke literally locked his wife out of Grosvenor House, his splendid London residence, and barred her from his country seat, Eaton Hall, near Chester.

The King and Queen gave a ball at Buckingham Palace in February. When the coveted invitations were sent out it was found that the Duchess of Westminster was bidden to the royal entertainment, but the Duke was not. This was a distinct intimation that Queen Mary, who detests domestic quarrels, does not approve of Westminster's conduct toward his wife.

The Duke, angered, forbade his wife to go to the palace ball, her friends say. She retorted, spiritedly, that she would go, and go she did. As always, she looked extremely well; no woman outshone her in personal beauty, jewels and dress.

Human Fly to Put Hat Atop Bunker Hill Monument

Rodman Law, the fearless "human fly," says he is going to bet Police Commissioner O'Meara $50 he cannot prevent him placing his cap on the top of Bunker Hill monument next week. He says:

I shan't bother with an aeroplane. That would be too much trouble. I shall scale the monument just as I did the Flatiron and other buildings in New York. After placing my cap on the top of the monument, I shall descend without the aid of a parachute or any other device, using only my hands and feet.

If, when I reach the ground, the commissioner doesn't like the looks of my cap at the top of the monument I'll go up and get it again.

FULL-RIGGED SHIP ON COMMERCE SEAL

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Secretary Redfield has devised a new symbol for the Department of Commerce. MAN DYING AS BOY SHOOTS TO SAVE MOTHER

BIDDEFORD, Me., May 10.—George Tarbox, sixty-five, of No. 43 Granite street, was shot in the head and probably fatally wounded early today, during a quarrel with his wife, according to the police, by a bullet from a .32-calibre rifle in the hands of his stepson, William Nash, twenty-one.

Nash, who is held by the police pending the result of his stepfather's injury, claims he shot in defence of his mother.

Nash's story is that he was in his bedroom when he heard a struggle going on downstairs. He saw Mrs. Tarbox struggling with her husband in the dining room. Nash alleges his mother was being choked, her face beaten to a pulp, and that he thought Tarbox was killing her.

Hurrying upstairs, Nash secured a rifle, which the police say he admits firing across the table at his stepfather. The bullet struck Tarbox in the right side of the face.

Tarbox, who is a teamster, lies at the Webber Hospital in a dying condition. The physicians fear that an artery has been severed, and that he cannot recover.

Mrs. Tarbox, who is fifty-five years old, suffered external injuries requiring the services of a physician.

On his way to the hospital, Tarbox recovered sufficiently to declare that his wife started the quarrel by striking him over the head with a small cau partly filled with milk.

Stops Tobacco Habit in One Day

Sanitarium Publishes Free Book Showing How Tobacco Habit Can Be Banished in From One to Five Days at Home.

The Elders Sanitarium, located at 880 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a free book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit and how it can be banished in from one to five days at home.

Men who have used tobacco for more than fifty years have tried this method and say it is entirely successful. In addition to banishing the desire for tobacco, has improved their health wonderfully. This method banishes the desire for tobacco, no matter whether it is in smoking, chewing, cigarette or snuff dipping.

MARTIN TO TRY OCEAN FLIGHT WITH HIS BRIDE

Mrs. James V. Martin, wife of the former Harvard aviator, and well known as the first woman to make a flight alone in New England, will accompany her husband on his attempt to cross the Atlantic ocean for Lord Northcliffe's prize of $50,000.

The flight, Mr. Martin has announced, will take place in August, on a specially constructed French machine, over a distance of 1853 miles, without stopping. The route will be from Newfoundland to the West coast of Ireland.

Mrs. Martin was formerly Miss Lillian Irvine, a beautiful Scotch girl who became the Harvard man's bride only two years ago, in England. She was then nineteen, and enthusiastic about the flying sport.

Mr. Martin and his wife have just returned to San Francisco from the Hawaiian Islands, and their determination to cross the Atlantic became known today.

The machine used will probably be of the hydroplane type, with more than two engines. It will be one of the largest machines ever constructed, and may carry five gasoline motors.

Mr. Martin estimates that he will have to carry over a ton of gasoline, and forty-eight gallons of oil. All of the engines will not be used, unless some accident to one of the motors occurs which necessitates their use.

Batson Plans Flight.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 10.—Captain M. A. Batson, U. S. A., retired, of Springfield, Mass., will start by July 1 on an Atlantic flight in an aero yacht now in process of construction.

New Hampshire Sends Uncle Sam Bill for 35 Cents

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The commonwealth of New Hampshire today lodged a claim for 35 cents against the federal government of the United States, and the worst of it is the United States has to pay.

Zealous State authorities in an unrelenting campaign against pests invaded the back yard of the postoffice building at Dover, N. H., and discovered three brown-tail moth nests in a lonely tree. The State "bugologists" destroyed the fiests and presented a bill for 35 cents, evidently at the established rate of 15 cents for the first nest and 10 cents for each of the others.

The postmaster protested. An issue was threatened and the quarrel was referred to the Treasury Department. Sherman Allen, assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who has a diplomacy as an assistant secretary to President Taft, conceded the point. After a formal bill and voucher are received a Treasury warrant will be sent to the State.

Lynn High Boys, Too, Favor Simple Graduation Garb

The battle against the cost of high living that has been waged by the girls in the graduating class of the Lynn high schools has been taken up by the boys in the senior class.

They have decided to wear blue coats and white trousers at commencement.

This declaration for a simple suit is strong at the English High School, where the boys are noted for their originality. Unless the authorities interfere the graduates-to-be will blossom forth in airy, cool negligee.

CONVICTIONS MAY SETTLE BOXING'S FATE IN SALEM

The lid has been clamped down on boxing in Salem through the arrested promoters of fights at the North street rink losing their appealed case in the Superior Criminal Court.

William J. Doyle and Richard E. Eagan, the promoters, were each fined $50, and Boy Wood of Fall River, John McMahon and Frank Mark of Beachmont, charged with taking part in the bouts were each fined $25.

These cases were first tried in the Salem District Court, March 14.

NEW MOVE FOR STONE RANSOM

New England people are interested in the latest attempt to have the government contribute $50,000 to those who raised the ransom for Ellen M. Actress Tells Secret

A Well Known Actress Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair and Promoted Its Growth, With a Simple Home-Made Mixture.

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray-haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieves itching and scalp humors and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."—Advertisement.

SEE ATTACK ON BOARD IN DENTAL BILL

The dental nurse controversy, brought up at the forty-ninth annual meeting of the Massachusetts Dental Society now in session in Boston, has interested every dentist in the State. A fierce discussion has been started which is likely to be fought out on Beacon Hill next Winter.

Dr. Frederic A. Keyes, a leading Back Bay dentist, who led the opposition to the bill for dental nurses at the State House, declares that the passing of a bill of this nature would be the most dangerous thing for the public that could be permitted.

Here is what Dr. Keyes has to say in opposition to practitioners who desire a dental nurse bill:

This dental nurse bill is a hoax and a thinly disguised attempt at the removal of the efficient Massachusetts Board of Registration in Dentistry.

If the most important part of caring for school children's mouths is cleansing the teeth, why not have the dentists devote their time to cleansing teeth instead of filling decayed teeth and removing abscesses as they do at present?

The ridiculous part of the whole agitation is shown by the vote taken at the banquet of the Massachusetts Dental Society the other night. Fifty dentists voted against it while only five favored it.

Sipp Fears He'll Be Assassinated; $50,000 for Trial

NEW YORK, May 10.—George A. Sipp, former Raines law hotel keeper, whose testimony exposed the alliance between the police and the underworld in Harlem's tenderloin, said today that he had taken out $50,000 worth of life insurance and added a codicil to his will directing that the sum be spent in prosecuting his murderers should he be assassinated as a result of his exposures of the police graft syndicate.

Warden Hayes of the Blackwell's Island prison is having a difficult time finding occupations for James F. Thompson, John J. Murtha, Dennis Sweeney and James E. Hussey, the former police inspectors who were sentenced to a year each for obstructing justice. None of the prisoners had received industrial training along any special line.

Sergeant Peter J. Duffy, charged with collecting graft for Sweeney, will be arraigned late this month or early in June.

Just the weight you will want to put on right now. Long or short sleeves, regular and stout sizes, 65¢ per garment; 4 pieces, $2.50. Extra sizes, 46 to 56, 75¢ per garment. 65c

We carry B. V. D. and Porosknit Underwear in all styles at 50c to $1.00 each.

OPEN SATURDAY EVENING

What does this statement mean to you?

What do you see to influence you in the fact that right here in Boston in our own workshops we are making 3000 suits a week?

We wouldn't be producing so many suits unless there was a demand for them, of course.

It must be that a lot of people believe in the value, the quality, the style, the real desirability of Morse-Made Clothes and back up their belief by buying them. We couldn't continue to produce 3000 suits a week if the clothes were high-priced, or old-style, or undesirable in any way, because we wouldn't be able to sell them.

Being such large producers we consume huge quantities of cloth, linings, trimmings. This means buying raw materials at bottom prices, thereby reducing cost of production so that we sell our clothes at prices that are really low and still make the legitimate profit to which we are entitled.

Another thing worth considering. With 3000 suits coming out of our workrooms every week, we're able to show you new things all the time in a variety that other stores can't begin to equal.

With these facts in front of you, do you think you are giving yourself a square deal if you neglect to come to our store for that suit you are going to buy? Don't you owe it to yourself to at least see what we can give you for your money?

Think it over.

PART I.

THAT speech was like a current of strength to the wretched girl. She sat suddenly erect, and her words came agerly.

"Oh, I do!" And now her hungry gaze remained fast on the face of the woman who offered her salvation.

Mary sprang up and moved a step toward the girl, who continued to stare at her, fascinated. She was now all wholesome. The memory of her own wrongs surged in her during this moment, only to make her more appreciative of the blessedness of security life. She was moved to a divine compassion over this waif for whom she might prove a beneficent providence. There was profound conviction in the emphasis with which she spoke her warning.

"Then I have just one thing to say to you first. If you are going to live straight, start straight, and then go through with it. Do you know what that means?"

"You mean, keep straight all the time?" The girl spoke with a force drawn from the other's strength.

"Well, then," Mary went on, "just walk all over again, and be sure you stand up for your rights. Don't let them make you pay a second time. Go where no one knows you, and don't tell the first people who are kind to you that you have been crooked. If they think you are straight, why, be it. Then nobody will have any right to complain." Her tone grew suddenly pleading. "Will you promise me this?"

"Yes, I promise," came the answer, very gravely, quickened with hope.

"Good!" Mary exclaimed, with a smile of approval. "Wait a minute," she added, and left the room.

Mary returned soon. In her hand she carried a roll of bills. She went to the girl and held out the money. Her voice was barbaresque now, but very kind.

"Take this. It will play your fare West, and keep you quite a while if you are careful."

But, without warning, a revulsion seized on the girl. Of a sudden, she shrank again, and turned her head away, and her body trembled.

"I can't take it," she stammered. "I can't! I can't!"

Mary stood silent for a moment from sheer amazement over the change. When she spoke, her voice had hardened a little. It is not agreeable to have one's beneficence flouted.

"Didn't you come here for help?" she demanded.

"Yes," was the faltering reply, "but —but—I didn't know—it was you!" The words came with a rush of desperation.

"Then, you have met me before?" Mary said quietly.

"No, no!" the girl's voice rose shrill. "So you have met me before? Where?" The girl unwittingly made confession in her halting words.

"You Are the One"

"I—I can't tell you." There was despair in her voice.

"You must." Mary spoke with severity. She felt that this mystery held in it something sinister to herself. "You must," she repeated imperiously.

The girl only crouched lower.

"I can't!" she cried again. She was panting as if in exhaustion.

Mary's usual shrewdness came to her aid, and she put her next question in a different direction.

"What were you sent up for?" she asked briskly. "Tell me."

"For stealing."

"Stealing what?" Mary said.

"Goods."

"Where from?"

A reply came in a breath so low that it was barely audible.

"The Emporium."

In a flash of intuition, the whole truth was revealed to the woman who stood looking down at the cowering creature before her.

"The Emporium!" she repeated. There was a tragedy in the single word. Her voice grew cold with hate, the hate born of innocence being tortured. "Then you are the one who——"

The accusation was cut short by the girl's shriek.

"I am not! I am not, I tell you."

For a moment Mary lost her poise. Her voice rose in a face of rage.

"You are! You are!"

The craven spirit of the girl could struggle no more. She could only sit in a huddled, shaking heap of dread. The woman before her had been disciplined by sorrow to sternest self-control. Though racked by emotions most intolerable, Mary soon mastered their expression to such an extent that when she spoke again, as if in self-communion, her words came quietly, yet with overtones of a supreme woe.

"She did it!"

Then, after a little, she addressed the girl with a certain wondering before this mystery of horror. "Why did you throw the blame on me?"

The girl made several efforts before her trembling became intelligible, and then her speech was gasping, broken with fear.

"I found out they were watching me, and I was afraid they would catch me. So, I took them and ran into the cloakroom, and put them in a locker that wasn't close to mine, and some in the pocket of a coat that was hanging there. God knows I didn't know whose it was. I just put them there—I was frightened——"

"And you let me go to prison for three years!" There was a menace in Mary's voice under which the girl cringed again.

"I was scared," she whined. "I didn't dare to tell."

Argie took advantage of the pause. Her voice was cold.

"Some people are sneaks—just sneaks!"

Somehow, the speech was welcome to the girl, gave her a touch of courage sufficient for cowardly protestations. It seemed to relieve the tension drawn by the other woman's torment. It was more like the abuse that was familiar to her. A gush of tears came.

"I'll never forgive myself, never!" she moaned.

Contempt mounted in Mary's breast.

"Oh, yes, you will," she said maleverently. "People forgive themselves pretty easily." The contempt checked for a little the ravages of her grief. "Stop crying," she commanded harshly. "Nobody is going to hurt you." She thrust the money again toward the girl, and crowded it into the half-reluctant, half-greedy hand. "Take it and get out." The contempt in her voice rang still sharper, mordant.

Even the pulling creature writhed under the lash of Mary's tones. She sprang up, slinking back a step.

"I can't take it!" she cried, whimpering. But she did not drop the money.

"Take the chance while you have it," Mary counseled, still with the contempt that pierced even the hardened girl's sense of selfishness. She pointed toward the door. "Go!—before I change my mind."

The girl needed, indeed, no second bidding. With the money still clutched in her hand, she went forth swiftly, stumbling a little in her haste, fearful lest, at the last moment, the woman she had so wronged should in fact change in mood, take back the money—ay, even give her over to that terrible man with the eyes of hate, to put her to death as she deserved.

Freed from the miasma of that presence, Mary remained motionless for a long minute, then sighed from her tortured heart. She turned and went slowly to her chair at the desk, and seated herself languidly, weakened by the ordeal through which she had passed.

"A girl I didn't know!" she said, bewilderedly; "perhaps had never spoken to—who smashed my life like that! Oh, if it wasn't so awful, it would be—funny! It would be funny!" A gust of hysterical laughter burst from her. "Why, it is funny!" she cried, wildly. "It is funny!"

"Mary!" Garson exclaimed sharply. He leaped across the room to face her. "That's no good!" he said severely.

AFTER Argie's vigorous comment there followed a long silence.

That voiceless young person, little troubled as she was by self-effacement, guessed the fact that just now further discussion of the event would be distasteful to Mary, and so she betook herself directly to a cigarette and the illustrations of a popular magazine devoted to the stage. As for the man, his reticence was really from a fear lest in speaking at all he might speak too freely, might betray the pervasive violence of his feeling. So, he sat motionless and wordless, his eyes carefully avoiding Mary in order that she might not be disturbed by the invisible vibrations that went from one to another. Mary herself was shaken to the depths. A great weariness, a weariness that cried the worthlessness of all things, had fallen upon her. It rested leaden on her soul.

"The Bulls Are Wise"

But, at last, she stirred unevenly and sat up. Garson accepted this as a sufficient warrant for speech.

"You know—Argie told you—that Cassidy was up here from headquarters. He didn't put a name to it, but I'm on." Mary regarded him languidly, and he continued, putting the fact that a certain brutal bluntness after the habit of his class. "I guess you'll have to quit seeing young Gilder. The bulls are wise. His father had made a holler."

"Don't let that worry you, Joe," she said tranquilly. She allowed a few seconds to go by, then added, as if quite indifferent: "I was married to Dick Gilder this morning." There came a squeal of amazement from Argie, a start of incredulity from Garson.

Argie sat erect, her baby face alike with worldly glee.

"My Gawd, what luck!" she exclaimed noisily. "Why, he's a king fish, he is. Gee! But I'm glad you landed him!"

"Thank you," Mary said, with a smile that was the result of her sense of humor rather than from any tenderness.

LEARN TERMS OF AMERICAN REPLY TO JAPS

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Japan's first formal protest against the California anti-alien land bill is lodged with the United States today.

The AMERICAN is in possession at present, on high authority, of the following outline of this government's reply to Japan's protest:

1—That Japan has no legal basis for her protest because the California bill has not yet been signed by the Governor, and is, therefore, not yet in existence.

2—That the Federal government has not violated the treaty of 1911 between the United States and Japan.

3—The United States suggests to the imperial government at Tokio a series of conferences on the questions that will arise if the California bill is put into operation.

These three propositions are already in the hands of Viscount Chinda and have been sent in cipher to the Japanese government.

The whole purpose of the reply, it is believed, is to delay the final settlement of this grave international controversy.

It has been arranged that Viscount Chinda will again meet Secretary Bryan at the state department today when the Secretary is expected to give the Mikado's representative this government's formal answer.

Viscount Chinda has been manifesting open impatience with this government's policy of delay. His actions at the State Department yesterday indicated he was under whip and spur from his home government to get an answer and to get it quickly.

Another phase of the nation's international relations interesting, if not nerve-racking, is found in the case of Guatemala. It would seem as if the fine diplomacy of England and Japan had joined hands in pressing their contentious upon this government all at once.

John Bassett Moore admitted today that official representatives of Guatemala were discussing with the State Department the means whereby Guatemala could discharge its debt to Great Britain. England is pressing the little South American republic for its debt.

BOY, 10, WINS $25 FOR AUTO ADVICE

Charles Boyd, ten, of No. 78 Oak street, Somerville, has won the first prize of $25, in the Automobile Legal Association contest for the best suggestion to pedestrians how to avoid accidents from automobiles. His suggestion was:

"Before crossing a street, stop. First look to the left, then to the right, and if safe, go ahead."

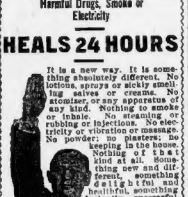
CATARRH TRUTH

Told In a Simple Way

No Apparatus, Inhalers, Salves, Lotions, Harmful Drugs, Smoke or Electricity

HEALS 24 HOURS



It is a new way. It is something absolutely different. No lotions, sprays or sickly smelling salves or creams. No atomizer, or any apparatus of any kind. Nothing to smoke or inhale. No steaming or rubbing or injecting. No electricity or vibration or massage. No powder; no plasters. No keeping in the house. Nothing of a like kind at all. Something new and different, something that is safe, quick and healthful, something that instantly successful. You do not have to wait, and linger and pay out a lot of money, and then I will gladly tell you how—FREE. I am not a doctor and this is not a prescription. I am not a doctor's prescription—but I am cured and my friends are cured, and you can be cured. Your suffering will stop at once like magic.

I Am Free—You Can Be Free

My catarrh was filthy and loathsome. It made me ill. It dulled my mind. It undermined my health and was weakening my will. The hawking, coughing, spitting made me obnoxious to all, and my foul breath and disgusting habits made even my loved ones avoid me severely. My delight in life was dulled and my faculties impaired. I knew that in time it would bring me to my grave. I was miserable every moment of the day and night it was on me. I tried many things in vain.

But I found a cure, and I am ready to tell you about it FREE. Write me promptly.

RISK JUST ONE CENT

Send no money. Just your name and address on a postal card. Say: "Dear Ben Kaye, Please tell me how you cured your catarrh and how I can cure mine." That's all you need say. I will understand. I will tell you, by return mail, complete information, FREE, at once. Do not delay. Do not neglect. Send a card or write me a letter today. Don't think of reading this page until you have asked for this wonderful treatment that can do for you what it has done for me.

CLEVELAND, May 10.—The Red Sox were out to win the final game with the Cleveland Naps here today. The series now stands 2 to 1 in favor of the locals, and Wagner's men were eager to even up the count.

"Heinie" will use either Joe Wood or Ray Collins in the box today. If "Smokey Joe" says the word he will go to the hill and his teammates are hoping that he will do so. Bill Steen or Jim Baskette will perform on the mound for the Naps.

With Manset Steve Yerkes back on the job and their 1912 American League pennant and world's series machine intact with the one exception of the manager and the first baseman, Jake Stahl, the Boston Red Sox showed the Naps some real classy baseball yesterday and won, 3 to 1.

In addition to playing a strong offensive and defensive game the Red Sox had on display just about the best brand of pitching the Naps have faced this season. "Buck" O'Brien—he with the spitball of many hooks and crooks—had the Naps eating from his hand, and but for a mental misstep by Catcher Bill Carrigan he would have registered a shut-out.

SHUBERT KNOCKED OUT.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Kid Anderson of Brooklyn knocked out Joe Shubert of Fall River in the second round of a scheduled ten-round bout at the East New York A. C.

Miller Huggins, managing Mrs. Helene Hathaway Britton's team of Cardinals, brought them to Boston today in fourth place in the National League. They were quite cocky over their standing until they learned the reason for today's public rejoicing over Boston's four-times-straight triumph over the Pirates.

This "clean-up" of the Pirates broke a record of a long, longstanding—so long that a precedent is not now recalled. "Interested Subscriber" and "A Fan" are invited to send in their best recollection of the last time the Boston Nationals beat any team four times in a row and "cleaned up" a series.

Besides the prestige of beating the Pirates four times straight by dazzling and perfect play and by good pitching, Stallings hopes to be able to fire something more at Huggins and his Cardinals. It was his intention, if Pitcher Rudolph is reinstated, to send the International League wonder after St. Louis in the first game.

Rudolph helped Toronto to win the International league pennant last year. This season the league fixed a salary limit of $6,000. The Toronto players expected increased salaries for winning the pennant, but instead suffered a reduction. Rudolph pitched one game, against Newark, his opponents making three hits. Then he quit and has since played semi-professional baseball. Stallings grabbed him, but had to have him reinstated to good standing before he would use Rudolph. This was expected today.

Fred Clarke took his Pirates away last night feeling very much peeved with their treatment in Boston. They had expected to carry away four easy ball games but, instead, lost them all.

"SUCH A HEADACHE!"

(Being a poker ailibi first applied to baseball since Wednesday's Detroit-New York game.)

Ray Keating twice struck out Ty Cobb,
Which they say is a whale of a job;
But they won't give him credit,
For Ty Cobb has said it
Was due to an ache in Cobb's knob.

* * *

SOME time ago we were moved to say that, however unimpressive his fielding average and however attenuated his batting average Steve Yerkes usually seemed to fit somehow into the most of the world's champion's victories. Nobody has told us yet why Steve was derricked from the team, but we are pleased to note that now that "Heinie" Wagner has set Yerkes back at second base, the Red Sox have won a ball game.

* * *

IF WE had a machine that had just won for us, we wouldn't tinker with it. We are profound believers in the policy of "let well enough alone." The Red Sox, constituted the way they were constituted, were good enough to win a world's championship. The same combination would be more likely to repeat if it wasn't monkeyed with too much.

* * *

THE big league season is one month old today. What do you think of THIS:

	W.	L.	P.C.
Boston Nationals..	8	12	.400
Boston Americans..	8	18	.381

* * *

THE National League race is close. The Pirates are only one-half game behind Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh only one and one-half games behind New York, New York only one and one-half games behind St. Louis, St. Louis only one-half game behind Chicago, Chicago only one-half game behind Brooklyn, and Brooklyn only the tiniest fraction of a point behind Philadelphia. The Pilgrims are four and one-half games behind the league leaders.

* * *

"DOPE" doesn't amount to much. But here it is a little, given for what it is worth. The Pirates open a series with the Phillies today. The Pirates have usually laid all over Doolin's team. Cincinnati goes over to Brooklyn. If there is any "dope" in the way these four teams have been playing, you should not be surprised if the Dodgers taste the sweets of first place—if only for a day or two. In the meantime Cubs and Giants meet—a circumstance which used to mean a deal of fur flying. And, over here the Pilgrims tackle the Cardinals. The Bostonians are perilously close to the Pirates and Giants and are going like a whirlwind.

IF THE Athletics beat the Browns and the Red Sox win from Cleveland today, the champions will creep into fifth place. The odds favor the former result and, if Joe Wood is back in form again and pitches they favor the latter proposition, too.

* * *

SPEAKING of betting, the following letter has been received:

Sporting Editor, AMERICAN:

Is baseball in Boston to be put on the same basis as that which cost the county its race tracks?

You are undoubtedly aware that there are professional bookmakers who operate back of the third base bleachers at the National grounds and back of the first base bleachers at the American grounds.

Is baseball an institution for gambling or is it our national pastime? There are no less than a dozen bookmakers well known to the police who ply their trade in this manner, but it would be a good idea if these bookmakers were barred from the grounds. The loss of their patronage would be more than offset by the loyal "fans" who like to see the game for the sake of the game. It seems to me that your columns would be open to expose this nefarious practice which will eventually kill the game in Boston if allowed to flourish unmolested.

A LOYAL "FAN."

* * *

THE ABOVE statement is true. Betting flourishes at both parks, as stated. There is no doubt that, if it became an open practice and flourished generally, betting would eventually kill baseball just as it killed horse racing. But here's a suggestion: A police officer, in uniform, is detailed to the betting crowd to preserve order every day. He is often busy quelling angry bettors. He knows there is public gambling and the sergeant and other officers who frequently hurl into the betting crowd, must know it, too. If they know it, it is a good guess that their captain knows it. If their captain knows it, it is hardly possible that police headquarters hasn't had a hint of it now and then. If, by any chance, they didn't know it before, they certainly will be fully posted when they read this.

* * *

WE READ frequent accounts of police breaking into private homes to smash up friendly poker games, so there is no doubt that the police know gambling is a violation of the law. Since they know that it exists and that it is illegal, let's see what they do about it now, Mr. A Loyal Fan.

* * *

CATCHER WHALING turned back every attempt to steal a base yesterday before it was even fairly started. After awhile the Pirates quit starting and Bill James kept them hugging their bases.

HENDRIX, O'Toole, Cammitz and Robinson based but two passes between them. O'Toole gave one purposely Wednesday. Cammitz handed out one yesterday.

Red Sox and Nap Players May Draw Suspension or Fines

CHICAGO, May 10.—There existed the possibility today that all the regular players of the Naps and Red Sox would be suspended for an indefinite period as punishment for the free-for-all fight, in which they engaged after the game Wednesday. President Johnson, who is rigidly investigating the affair today, is said to have decided that either a heavy fine or suspension will be meted out to the fight participants. Witnesses state that about ten players of each team were involved.

SHERIDAN-GOODMAN IN A DRAW BOUT

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 10.—Mickey Sheridan and Danny Goodman of Chicago fought ten slashing rounds to a draw before a good crowd here. At times the bout was vicious, as each man strove to land a knockout.

CORNELL TEAM FAVORITE IN TRACK GAMES

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

(Quarter Mile Champion of United States and Canada.)

The first great meet of importance in college track and field athletics will take place this afternoon in the Harvard Stadium when the wonderful Cornell team will meet the Harvard representatives. It will be one of the best meets yet held in this city as Harvard and Cornell are the favorites for the premier honors in the great intercollegiate meet which comes later in the month.

Cornell should win this afternoon's meet but if they are fortunate enough to total the largest number of points they will be but a little ahead of the Crimson athletes.

Although interest in the meet will rest on a number of athletes, the greatest attraction is the great John Paul Jones, captain of the Cornell track team. It was in the same stadium two years ago that this wonderful athlete startled the athletic world by covering the mile route in 4m. 15 2-5s. He had the competition that afternoon as the entry in the mile event was as fast as any meeting has ever witnessed.

The best race of the afternoon should be in the 440 yard event in which Cousens of the Cornell team will meet a farmer in Barron, the Harvard double furlonger

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

THE professional layers of odds on ball games were badly stung in the Pittsburgh series. The results of the four games between the Pirates and Pilgrims put a crimp in their several and collective bank rolls that only time and considerable luck can heal.

It was a sad looking lot of "bookies" that arose from the third base bleachers at the old Walpole street grounds yesterday afternoon and sneaked off to their lairs. They have no friends. Everybody is glad when they lose. Even the "ropper" who stands as mouthor in their midst on the bleachers to prevent gambling (but who does not prevent it), had to smile when Bill Rariden drove that long fly to the outfield which scored Devlin with the winning run.

THE gentlemen who make the quotations on the ball games started the Pittsburgh series by offering 10 to 8½, with Boston, of course, on the long end. The pikers snapped up everything in sight and cashed at the end of the game. The "bookies" smiled a sickly smile and paid their losses with as much grace as they could summon to their aid. They felt that the pikers had only negotiated a temporary loan from them and that they would get it back on the morrow.

THE morrow came and the odds offered were the same. Again the pikers went to the front, and not only bet their usual wager, but also the winnings of the day before. Again they cashed and the "bookies," who simply hate to pay out money, were nearly heartbroken.

ON Thursday the professionals boosted the odds to 10 to 5. There was, of course, little chance for Boston to win three straight from the Pirates, but they wanted their money back in a hurry. The pikers became imbued with the idea that the Pilgrims were world beaters, however, and they went to it stronger than ever. When Boston won again their joy was only exceeded by the gloom of the "bookies."

ON Friday, although there wasn't a chance in a million, seemingly, for the Boston team to "cop" four straight, the "bookies" stiffened the odds to 10 to 7 and would accept no wagers at any better figures. With James in the box for Boston, however, the pikers, who were pikers no longer, threw caution to the winds and took another plunge on the home team. The result of the game was simply horrible for the professionals. The subdued cursing indulged in by them when Rariden pushed over the winning run scorched the bleachers and withered the grass in the vicinity of third base. They are a lot of sad dogs today.

THE best piece of news, however, is that one loyal Pilgrim rooter on Tuesday bet $5 against $500 that Boston would win all four games.

Dr. Osler Offers Mondot $25,000 to Secure His Body

Dr. William Osler of New York, who lectured at Harvard ten days ago, has offered Joe Mandot, the sensational twenty-year-old New Orleans lightweight boxer, $25,000 for his body after death, according to a report from Mandot's home today.

This is as much money as Mandot would be able to earn in the ring in a year and a half, provided he won all of his bouts. Dr. Osler fails to state for what purpose he wishes to obtain Mandot's body.

If Dr. Osler separates himself from $25,000 good iron men at the present time, it is liable to prove a losing investment as far as he is concerned. Mandot is a strong young man who has never been ill for more than one or two days at a time.

Mandot is a contender for the lightweight championship, although he was recently defeated by Leach Cross of New York at New Orleans.

It is believed here in Boston that Dr. Osler considers Mandot an average boxer and desires to find out what effect fighting has on a person's constitution. There are many prominent physicians who claim a man is often seriously injured internally while performing in the ring and that such happenings are not working towards a strong, rugged race.

Mandot, however, is in a position to use $25,000. He is a patriotic little fellow, born of French parents, and his greatest ambition is to obtain sufficient money to enable him to quit the ring and spend his time in travel and especially in viewing the places of interest in France.

WORCESTER, May 10.—The Harvard baseball warriors are here for their annual diamond battle with the Holy Cross players and according to reports received from both camps one of the best exhibitions seen on Elliott Field this season will be pulled off. The Holy Cross aggregation will present its strongest lineup against the Crimson team and Coach Billy Dyer will send in Red Murray, his star twirler, to hold down the visitors, while Hardy is scheduled to start the game for Harvard.

Murphy, a Boston boy, will be behind the bat for Holy Cross, as it is his turn to perform the backstop work, but there is a possibility of a chance that he may be sent out into the left garden, Metevier called to the bench and Ray Carroll kept in the game.

The infield of the local college team will remain the same as has been for the last four battles.

The Crimson followers will also present their strongest lineup against the Jesuit College players, Coach Frank Sexton having made several changes in the batting order.

Dead Girl Sues Buried Mother; Claiming $5,000

A posthumous suit for $5,000 for board and care, in which the plaintiff, Mrs. Lucy M. Spencer, and defendant, Mrs. Percy S. Buxton, daughter and mother respectively, are dead, has been filed in Salem.

Charles P. Spencer of Salem, a harness manufacturer, as administrator of the estate of his wife, brings the suit. He names John M. Raymond, executor of the will of his late mother-in-law, Mrs. Buxton.

He says that Mrs. Buxton owed his wife $2,700.67. Spencer says there is due his wife payments for room rent, clothing, board and attendance for 600 years. Credits are given for $3,430.67, leaving a balance, he claims, of $5,024.75, including interest.

CONTINUANCE IN GUERTIN CASE

United States Commissioner Hayes today granted a continuance until May 15 in the case of Miss Nellie Grant Guertin, Fred Lamb, Dr. Richard Wynne and J. Addison Patron, who are wanted in New York, charged with being fugitives from justice. It is alleged that they conspired to counterfeit bills in a suit which Miss Guertin brought against the Mason Seamless Tank Company for $75,000 for alleged injuries.

TWO MEN KILLED IN CHATHAM, ONT., FIRE

CHATHAM, Ont., May 10.—Two men are believed to have been burned to death and three others had narrow escapes in a fire which completely destroyed the building occupied by the Chatham Planet. Alexander McDougal and Robert Birch, both of the composing room, are the two missing men. The property loss was $75,000.

CASSIDY URGES ACTION ON BILL TO BAR ICE CREAM ADULTERATION

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Pure food legislation in the Massachusetts Legislature has reached the final stages. Most of the bills which have been presented to the bodies have been either passed or defeated. Governor Foss has signed two measures, and has three awaiting his signature. One or two are pending, one has not been reported.

Two measures are now in the hands of conference committees. Another is expected to be referred to a conference committee within a few days. Each of these bills is extremely important, and today I want to report some of the things I have said about one of them, and to urge the members of the conference committee to act.

The bill is aimed to prevent the adulteration of ice cream. I introduced a bill for this purpose and the bill now in the House was drafted by Dr. Benjamin Sharp of Nantucket, a member of the Public Health Committee, as a substitute for my bill.

Dr. Sharp's measure was a good one—though it did not give all the reforms that are needed. This bill forbade the sale of ice cream containing less than 5 per cent. butter fat, or containing unsound fruit or artificial fruit flavors, or unsound nuts.

The House of Representatives passed the measure. In the Senate it was amended, and the butter fat standard increased to 10 per cent. The conference committee is expected to decide which standard was the correct one.

Dr. Sharp was in charge of the bill in the House. He favors the 10 per cent. standard. The Committee on Public Health, in reporting the bill, put the mark at 5 per cent., though a feeling that a higher standard could not pass, in the spirit of the two branches on the matter becoming known, and in order to get a 10 per cent. standard could be adopted, Dr. Sharp declared himself as favoring this higher mark.

This is what Dr. Harvey Wiley thinks of a 5 per cent. standard:

Dear Mr. Cassidy:—

I am sorry to hear that Massachusetts ice cream is to be depreciated that you have to get a law to prevent ice cream running below 5 per cent. butter fat. That is getting pretty weak when it gets down that law. As far as I am concerned I would not much care if it went the rest of the descent.

The old "interests" are still alive and securing results in the Legislatures, but at least you have stirred up the Massachusetts Board of Health, which preaches that cream, soda and sulphur dioxide are harmless, and virtually recommends their use in foods. Keep up the good fight.

Yours truly,
H. W. WILEY.

Here are some of the reasons why a 10 per cent. standard of butter fat in ice cream is desirable.

1—A high butter fat standard is the best way to insure the quality of ice cream and protect it from adulterations. Much of the cream now sold is made largely of condensed milk, or of skimmed milk powders. These milk powders, and the grade of condensed milk used, are of low quality, and the danger that the ice cream contains hosts of germs dangerous to public health.

2—Massachusetts must have a high butter fat standard or lag behind her sister States. Most of the New England States have a standard of 14 and 12 per cent.—higher than we asked for here. The Federal government likewise has a 14 and 12 per cent. standard.

It appears probable, from talks I have had with members of the conference committee, that a 10 per cent. standard will be recommended. Here are the members, with their stands on the question:

DR. BENJAMIN SHARP, Representative, member of the Committee on Public Health, in charge of the bill, favors a 10 per cent. standard.

DR. ENOS H. B...ELOW, of Framingham, House chairman of the Committee on Public Health, will support Dr. Sharp in his fight for a 10 per cent. standard.

REPRESENTATIVE MARTIN HAYS, of Brighton, is—so far as is known—the only member of the committee who is opposed to a 10 per cent. standard.

SENATOR CHARLES F. M'CARTHY, member of the Committee on Public Health, will fight for a 10 per cent. standard.

SENATOR C. AUGUSTUS NORWOOD, of Hamilton, is a member of the Committee on Public Health. He is expected to align himself with the other members of the Health Committee, and favor a 10 per cent. standard.

SENATOR FREDERIC HILTON, of Framingham, chairman of the Senate Committee on Conference, who has been instrumental in adopting perfecting amendments to other food bills, has declared himself as favoring 10 per cent. standard—the standard passed by the Senate.

The committee therefore stands five to one in favor of a 10 per cent. standard. Representative Martin Hays of Brighton is the only man known to oppose the bill.

Representative Hays, last Tuesday, was in conference in the State house with William H. Squire of Allston, chairman of the Republican Committee of Ward 25. Representative Hays comes from Brighton, Mr. Squire is connected with the Boston Ice Cream Company of Roxbury.

FROST THREATENS RECORD FRUIT CROP

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., May 10.—The fate of more than $1,000,000 worth of fruit in the great fruit region of Michigan today was hanging in the balance as the result of unusually cold weather. A further drop in temperature threatened a disastrous freeze. Smudge pots were burning all of last night in many orchards in an effort to prevent damage to the crop by frost. A record crop is predicted in Michigan if damage by cold is prevented.

PERFECT BABY HERE? WHAT DO MOTHERS SAY?

Mothers!

Who is New England's perfect baby?

It used to be in the days gone by: "Who has the prettiest baby?" Nowadays the all important question is: "Is your baby a 'perfect baby'?" Beauty has given way to health.

New York has a perfect baby. He was found in the heart of the crowded East Side tenement district. He is a brown-eyed, chubby little boy. His name is Abe Edelowitz, the son of a Roumanian-Jewish-American. All the three months and fifteen days of his life have been spent at No. 103 Eldridge street, New York.

Little Abe scored 1,000 points in the baby health contest arranged by Dr. L. Emmett Holt, the children's specialist, and Robbins Gilman, head of the University Settlement.

Baby Abe was pronounced "perfect" by Dr. Stafford McLean after a minute examination of his skin, head, scalp, eyes, nose, mouth, ears, throat, teeth, neck, arms, hands, legs, chest, abdomen and feet.

Abe is in Class A, which comprises babies from one to six months old. Class B includes babies from six months to a year old, Class C from one to two years old.

Abe's mother is twenty-four years old and this is her second child. The first died of pneumonia.

"Abe really brings himself up," explained Mrs. Edelowitz to a reporter. "I let him do as he wishes. Sometimes he goes to bed at 7 o'clock, sometimes not until 10. Sometimes he wants to be nursed ten times a day, sometimes only half a dozen times."

So the question naturally arises: Where is New England's perfect baby? Is it a boy or a girl? Where does it live—in the crowded North End of Boston or on a farm in Vermont? Is it in homes in Providence, R. I., or Norway, Me.?

Mothers! Who is New England's perfect baby?

Their Married Life

Helen, from a Box, Looks Down Upon Warren at a Banquet.

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

It was just 9.30 when Helen, in an evening gown and long white wrap, hurried down to a taxicab.

"The Hotel ——," she called to the driver as she gathered her chiffon skirts about her white satin slippers and stepped in.

To be whirling through the streets alone at 9.30 was for Helen a new sensation, and always self-conscious, she dreaded arriving at the hotel unescorted.

It was the night of the annual dinner of the International Fraternal Society. Mr. Jennings had invited Warren to the dinner and had given him a box ticket for Helen. She was supposed to arrive about ten, to sit in a box overlooking the banquet hall and listen to the speeches.

With a fluttering heart she left the cab and ran up the awning-covered steps of the hotel. Keenly conscious that she was alone, she hurried through the lobby to the nearest elevator.

At the entrance to the balcony of the banquet hall the doorman took her ticket and escorted her to one of the boxes in which were already seated three beautifully gowned women.

Below was the banquet hall with a long speakers' table at the end, and countless smaller tables crowded so close that the waiters could hardly pass between. It was a brilliant scene—the lights, the flower-decked tables, the high, gilded ceiling and gleaming chandeliers.

Helen's first impression as she leaned over the red plush railing of the box was to find Warren. But it was not easy to locate any one in that great crowded hall, with all the diners in evening dress, and each with a white carnation in his buttonhole.

Not Warren

Was that Warren with his back towards her at that table by the pillar? She leaned forward eagerly, but as she caught a glimpse of the man's face her scorching glance swept on to other tables.

The waiters were just bringing on the dessert—a pinkish ice in tall slender glasses. There were many things in the table appointments that Helen was eager to notice, but she could not be content until she had located Warren.

Then suddenly she saw him at a table near the centre. Why had she not seen him at once? Surely no one else looked so distinguished!

If he would only look up! But he was talking to the man at his right. He had promised to look for her around 10, and it was that now, but he kept on laughing and talking, not even glancing towards the boxes.

The waiter had just placed before him his frozen pudding and refilled his wine glass. Then Helen saw that every one at Warren's table raised their champagne. Some of the other tables and champagne, some had claret, and a few there were no wine glasses at all.

Warren was looking up now. He was glancing toward the boxes! He saw Helen and waved his napkin.

Helen flushed with pride as the other women in the box turned to look at her. In spite of their expensive gowns and jewels Helen felt certain that their husbands were not so handsome and distinguished as Warren.

It was absorbingly interesting to sit there and look down upon all those men. Most of them had finished their dinner now and had relaxed to a lounging attitude over their coffee and cigars. Except that now and then one of them would look up at the boxes and smile they seemed wholly unconscious of the many beautifully gowned women who were looking down upon them.

The waiters had now all lined up by the door, each carrying a tray piled high with small white boxes—the dinner souvenirs. At a sign from the head waiter, they filed in and out through the tables, leaving a white box beside each plate.

Had the diners been women, they would have instantly opened the boxes, but the men seemed hardly to notice them. So Helen's curiosity was not gratified.

The Dinner Over

At length the dinner was over. The waiters began carrying out the dishes and the pink-shaded candles, most of which had burned out. The orchestra had been playing in a balcony and stopped.

The chairman at the speakers' table rose and rapped for order. Helen wondered why he was a chairman. He was small and insignificant, with a thin voice that did not carry. After some tedious remarks, which no one could hear, he introduced the first speaker of the evening, Dr. Olony, an eminent sociologist.

Helen leaned forward with eager interest. The speakers were all prominent men, and she felt their addresses would be well worth hearing. But Dr. Olony began with the usual trite preliminary remarks about it being "an honor to address so distinguished a gathering." Then to Helen's dismay he produced a formidable manuscript and proceeded to read it.

Everybody sat back resignedly. After the first few moments Helen did not pretend to listen. The women beside her kept up a running conversation. Several men had now come to the various boxes to sit with their wives and friends. The eminent Dr. Olony was still reading in a monotonous voice.

Helen's glance never left Warren for long, and now she saw him push back his chair and leave the table. He looked up and nodded. He was coming up to her!

"Well, what do you think of it?" when he entered the box and took the chair beside her.

"Oh, dear, it's very interesting," happily excited now that he was with her. How wonderful he looked—how distinguished! Her eyes rested on him proudly.

Roasting the Speaker

"Rotten speaker," he grumbled. "A man ought to be mobbed for reading a speech at a dinner like this. What people want is short, polished addresses of say—five minutes. That's the limit I've been spouting for fifteen."

"Oh, dear, you didn't bring me your souvenir! I wanted so much to see them."

"Forgot the blamed thing. Get it for you later. Wonder who that stunning woman is in the box over there?"

Helen followed his glance to the dark-haired regal-looking woman. She was undeniably beautiful. Her gown of white lace was cut strikingly low, and there was a strand of pearls about her throat and in her hair. Helen was suddenly jealous, but somehow she felt suddenly plain and poorly gowned beside the striking loveliness of that woman.

The speaker finished now and sat down amid much applause. He bowed repeatedly, not seeming to realize that the applause was only an expression of relief that he was through. Again the chairman rapped for order.

This time a United States Senator was introduced.

He, too, his voice was deep and booming, and he was plainly used to talking on his feet. But his ranting eloquence was just words—empty phrases. He had nothing particular to say and was merely "orating."

Warren, who loathed after dinner speaking, and who rarely attended big dinners because he would not be bored, was becoming restive.

"How many more of these guys do we have to stand for?" drawing from his pocket the dinner menu, on the back of which were the names of the speakers. "Suffering cats! FOUR more? Well, I guess not! We'll cut it and make for home."

"Oh, dear, we'd better wait a little longer! It'll look rude to leave so early, Mr. Jennings will think we didn't enjoy it."

"Guess he's bored stiff, too. Why in blazes don't they have some live talkers instead of ringing in a lot of dead ones?"

If the speech of the eminent sociologist had been long, the Senator's seemed interminable. He boomed on with high sounding phrases about "The achievements of the Nineteenth Century..... The Splendid strides of Civilization ..... The Advancement of Society," and something about "Shining Orbits in the Sky of Future Progress ..... Rising in Front of the Jewelled Crown of an Unconquerable Race."

Every one was becoming impatient and restive, even the chairman had his mallet poised as though anxious to rap it, but still the Senator kept on shouting his oratorical phrases.

"Gosh, that fellow loves to hear himself talk," growled Warren. "He's good for another hour yet. Come ON!

"But, dear, we must wait—we can't leave while he's speaking," whispered Helen.

Missed the Souvenir

"Like to know why we can't? Here's where I get out!"

"And I didn't get the souvenir—I didn't even see what they were!" bewailed Helen, as Warren hurried her out through the crowded corridors of the hotel.

"Souvenirs!" with a contemptuous sniff. "Well, I wouldn't have stood for any more of that duffer's speech for a dozen souvenirs. I'll wager he's spouting there yet."

"Yes, he WAS tiresome," Helen admitted, sinking into the taxicab with a sigh of relief. Then laughingly, "Dear, if you ever make an after-dinner speech, don't begin by saying you 'feel honored to address so distinguished a gathering.' And don't—PLEASE don't use a lot of fine phrases that mean nothing."

"Huh," snorted Warren, "don't you worry! If ever I make a public speech I'll have something to say, and I'll say it blamed quick, and have gumption enough to sit down when I'm through."

"Little Jennie had never ridden in a taxicab before"

CHAPTER 2

JENNIE and THE MAN sat in the big, bright restaurant and listened to the music and watched the cabaret dancers, and Jennie's big brown eyes wondered at it all. At the beautiful dresses of the women diners, the bright lights, the thick, rich carpet on the floor and the noiseless waiters.

It was just like fairyland to Jennie, for she had never, never even imagined that things could be so lovely. The boys she knew could not afford such places, and the height of her social life had been walks in the park on Sundays and maybe the ice cream parlors for soda.

THE MAN did not urge her to drink much of the bubbly wine—for he knew she wasn't used to it and there might be explanations for her to make when she got home, and that would NEVER do. For THE MAN was wise, and didn't want Jennie's mother or father to suspect anything—quite so soon.

Jennie realized at last that it was getting late and that she would have to go home, and besides it would take nearly an hour on the car to where she lived. When she mentioned the car, THE MAN wouldn't hear of such a thing. They must take a taxicab—and besides that would get them to Jennie's home much quicker than a car. A taxicab!—and poor little Jennie had never even ridden in one before—the cushions were so soft and warm and things zipped by so quick, 'till they just seemed to fly along. How different from the pokey old street cars, thought Jennie. THE MAN was polite as could be and talked of the delightful time they had that evening—and how lonesome he would be when she was gone, and they really MUST see one another quite soon again—but she mustn't tell her mother where she had been that night—just that she had to work late and had hurried right home—and he would have the taxicab stop a block or so from her home, so no one would be the wiser.

Jennie was so proud of riding in a taxicab that she wanted to drive right up to her front door, but THE MAN explained that would NEVER do. So with a promise from her to "ring him up" the next day, he had the taxicab stop a block down the street and very politely helped Jennie out with a promise to watch and see that she reached home safely. When she had gone he told the chauffeur the name of a prominent cafe, and with a chuckle got in and slammed the door.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

When a Man Has a Birthday

As Kin Commissioner General of the United States, Lysander John Appleton occupies a position she considers of such importance of which is well appreciated by his large and steadily increasing kinridden constituency.

It lies within his jurisdiction to decide to which side of the warring faction of a family belongs the family jewels and the feather bed. When a woman dies, he decides the right of her children or her husband's next wife to her "things," that being the generic term for petticoats, hair switches, family albums, the butter knife, the hot water bag and the cameo pin she deceased left, and which assume great value when her husband marries again.

It is he who draws in immovable line between kinship and friendship. "Is a man as near kin to his wife's ugly sister as he is to her sister who is beautiful?" was a question that remained undecided until Lysander John Appleton was elected to office, and it was he who decided in plain and unmistakable terms that a young husband's embarrassment in calling his mother-in-law "Mother" was not serious because of the speedy opportunity that would be offered for addressing her as "Grandma."

While there has been some complaint that battleships have not been ordered out to enforce his decisions—the helpless kin-hampered citizens believing that they had a right to enjoy the protection so freely accorded to Americans who voluntarily exile themselves to warring foreign lands—there has been a disposition to believe that General Appleton was doing his best.

Therefore, when it became known that he was to have a birthday, every one who was awaiting a kin decision in his, or her favor, decided to propitiate him with a gift.

But what could it be, for it is conceded that to buy a suitable gift for a man requires a wisdom that is almost divine?

"He smokes!" was the joyous discovery of a woman who wanted a decision against her husband's mother. "He smokes," rang down the line of grandparents, fathers, mothers, uncles, sisters, cousins, aunts and all the in-laws, and every one rejoiced as a man who is lost on strange roads rejoices when he sees a guide board.

The presents arrived by messenger, by van loads, and by car loads. "We will unwrap them," said his wife, "and put them around his bed when he sleeps, that his eyes may behold them the first thing on his birthday morning."

They did so. And when Lysander John opened his eyes the next morning he saw them. Some were of China, others of cut glass, others of bronze, iron, copper, silver and one man hated his mother-in-law to the extent of sending one of gold. They were piled on the dresser and the chiffonier; they overflowed to the chairs and covered the floor and the bed—NINE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY FOUR ASH TRAYS.

Well Qualified

"So you think you would make a satisfactory valet for an old human wreck like myself, do you?" said the old soldier to the applicant for the position of body servant. "You know I have a glass eye, a wax arm, and a wooden leg that need to be looked after, not to mention my false teeth."

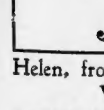
"Oh, that's all right, colonel," said the applicant, cheerfully. "I worked five years in the assembling department of the motor car works, and there isn't a machine on the market that I can't take apart and put together again with my eyes shut."

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, and then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could attend to all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—MRS. HAYWARD SOWERS, Cary, Maine.



If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-Page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free, and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX

He Has a Good Laugh by Himself

MARCH 25.—I comforted myself during that long period at the dinner table when the widow devoted herself to Jack Spencer with the reflection that at least I would get to put her on her train. I listened abstractedly to Jack's stories about his collection of seamiters with my mind busy planning all I wanted to say. She was not going far; perhaps I could arrange to follow her in a day or two, and spend a day with her. Perhaps—who knows?—she might make love to me as violently as when we were in Florida in the Winter.

The thought of such delicious danger thrilled me, and I was glad when we started back to the station.

We had reached the waiting room and Jack, who seemed extremely officious, I thought, had sent me to the check room for Mrs. Brown's handbag, where I had to stand in line fully fifteen minutes. It was annoying, of course, but in a few minutes, I thought, I would have the widow to myself, and that would make up for a great deal.

Judge of my surprise, Diary, when I returned, to have Jack grab the bag from my hand, saying in the coolest, most matter-of-fact way, "I'll put Mrs. Brown on her train, Max. I want to tell her the story of that seamiter I picked up in Cuba. You stay here with Sallie."

There was a hurried handshake with me, a renewed recital of the pleasure she had experienced in meeting Mrs. Spencer, and the widow was gone! For a moment I was dazed. I gazed blankly after them, Jack leaning over the widow as they walked as if he had found a long lost possession and was afraid if his eyes were removed he would lose it, then my eyes turned to Mrs. Spencer.

A Little Frown

She didn't look bewildered, but on her face there was the slightest suspicion of a frown. Plainly, she was mad, but just as plainly, she was too diplomatic to show it, even to me.

Then the humor of the situation flashed over me, and I fell into the seat next to hers overcome with laughter. I believe I howled, I know I shrieked, and shook, and I know that others around me looked as if I might have gone suddenly insane, while on the faces of some there appeared a sympathetic grin. I hadn't laughed till the tears came in twenty years, but I laughed then till they rolled down my cheeks, and through it all Sallie Spencer never smiled.

It is a new fortunate dispensation of Providence that women have no sense of humor. If they had, they would laugh at themselves when they laughed themselves to death. Here sat Sallie Spencer, who had voluntarily made a sacrifice of her comfort that might prevent a very fascinating woman having her old friend at her mercy for an evening, and perhaps eloping with him; and that most fascinating woman had carried off her husband! And she didn't see any thing funny in it!

On the contrary, the more I laughed the more injured she grew.

"I hope," she said at length, "that you are enjoying yourself. I am sure I don't see anything funny in the situation."

Whereupon I laughed the harder and was still laughing with my mirth echoing away in faint chuckling, when Jack returned.

"Why didn't you tell me, Max," he said, "that your friend is so interested in seamiters. Really, she is the most intelligent and appreciative woman I ever knew."

I pinched Mrs. Jack's arm as I replied: "Yes, she is very clever, a lot more interesting than the majority of these dull women we know who don't know a seamiter from a pickaxe and who would use one for cutting their corns if they had it."

Poor, Simple Jack.

Our talk was along the same line when in the limousine on the way home.

Jack extolling the widow's beauty and her wit and I repeating at every opportunity what a great thing it was to meet a woman so clever.

"I'll wager, Jack," I said, "that you enjoyed her more than you have enjoyed any woman in years. It must be a great thing for a man like you to meet a kindred soul like hers. She isn't bound down to the plane of the commonplace like the women who keep house and think it a great feat to get up a good dinner. Why, that woman can tell at a glance if a seiadter came from Adrianople or Damascus! And isn't that better, I want to know, than knowing a chuck steak from a porterhouse?"

I can count the compliments I paid the widow by the black and blue marks on my arm. Sallie Spencer giving me a pinch for every one, while Jack, on the opposite seat, saw nothing and detected no sarcasm in what I was saying.

When a man has a fad he becomes insane on that subject. Here was a man whose fad was making him so insane it had led him to draw comparisons unfavorable to his wife, a woman who had always regarded his fad as something harmless because it kept him out of greater mischief. And she had seen in it nothing more.

I was not at all surprised this morning, while engaged in my hourly exercise of rescuing Maurice's brown-eyed pup from larger dogs, and later in rescuing her kitten from the brown-eyed pup, to be called to the telephone, and to hear Mrs. Spencer asking me to come right over. She wanted to have a talk with me.

"She has mapped out her plan of campaign," I said to myself, and after giving instructions to Tompkins to become substitute guardian for the brown-eyed pup and the cats, and thanking heaven that life was not made more strenuous with a bird, I crossed the lawn to the Spencer home.

Household Hints

To make a good glue, always ready for use without previous heating, break up the glue into small pieces, and put it with some whiskey in an airtight bottle. Leave it for four days, shaking the bottle occasionally, then strain it. So much glue should be used as the whisky will dissolve, thus prepared in this way will keep for a long time and always remain liquid.

A mixture of castor oil with the white of egg has been recommended for burns. It allays the pain more quickly and causes the wound to heal more rapidly than any other application. The eggs are broken and emptied into a bowl, and the castor oil gradually and slowly poured in, while the eggs are beaten. Enough oil is added to make a thick, creamy paste, which is applied to the burn with a feather. The applications are repeated often enough to prevent the parts becoming dry or stiff. It is best to abstain from any dressings, leaving the surface uncovered.

When the eyelashes are thin and weak, a simple treatment for strengthening them is to moisten one of the fingers with iodine, close the eyes and run the greased finger along the edges of the eyelids, taking care that the grease does not get into the eyes themselves. Weak eyebrows may also be treated with iodine, which should be rubbed gently into them.

RESINOL QUICKLY CURED HER BABY'S SEVERE ECZEMA

Had Not Had a Good Night's Rest in Eight Months.

Chelsea, Mass., Jan. 19, 1913.—"My son had been troubled with eczema for about one year. It first appeared when three months old. I tried everything that was recommended and also different prescriptions, but of no avail. For eight months the child did not enjoy a good night's rest. I was finally told to try Resinol. This I did, and from the first application the child got relief and put in a good night's sleep. In three days there was no sign of eczema—to-day he has a fine complexion as any healthy child and is entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. C. E. Brown, 54 Crescent Ave.

Resinol positively stops Itching instantly and speedily heals eczema and other skin humors, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Prescribed by doctors for 15 years. Sold by every druggist. O'HARA'S NAME IS CLEARED BY MISS ROBINSON

CHICAGO, May 10.—Maud Robinson, who signed an affidavit charging improper conduct against Barrett O'Hara, Lieutenant-Governor of Illinois, and statement of the Senate White Slave Committee, was the first witness today before a sub-committee appointed to investigate the affair. She denied absolutely that there had been anything improper in her relations with the Lieutenant-Governor. Senator Ericson, Chairman of the investigating committee, questioned the woman.

"Are you the Maud Robinson who signed an affidavit in Springfield?" he asked.

"Yes, I am the woman," she replied.

"Do you remember what was in the affidavit?"

"I remember what was in it when I signed it."

"Did it anything to do with your personal conduct?"

"No. I don't believe my conduct was mentioned or that of any one else, except as our having registered at that hotel as Miller and wife."

"How long were you at the Sherman?"

"Three days."

"During the three days did you at any time hold illegal relations with Barrett O'Hara?"

"No, sir. I certainly did not."

"Now, Miss Robinson, did you at any time in your life have illegal relations with Barrett O'Hara?"

"No, I never did."

The question was repeated to her in other forms and she continued her emphatic denial.

"But at the same time you signed an affidavit?" Ericson continued.

"Yes, I signed an affidavit."

Before the hearing began Lieutenant-Governor O'Hara made a statement to the committee in which he declared that a woman writer, who attended a Press Club card party on the night of January 17, would furnish his alibi.

Wiener Braves Antis to Predict 'Votes' Triumph

Anti-suffragists are perturbed today over the prediction of Professor Leo Wiener of Harvard before the Massachusetts Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, that woman suffrage is bound to come. He asserted, however, that the cry for equal rights would bring the world back to the old state where women did the work, while the men did the fighting.

BALKAN ALLIES AGREE ON PLAN TO DIVIDE SPOILS

VIENNA, May 10.—Threatened hostilities between Bulgaria and Servia have been averted, according to dispatches published today in the official press. These stated that the two Balkan countries have reached an agreement respecting the redivision of the territory conquered from Turkey. As a mark of pacific intentions each country has agreed to demobilize as soon as peace is declared.

U. S. AMBASSADOR'S HOUSE IN DANGER

PARIS, May 10.—One workman was killed, five others were injured and the safety of the residence of Myron Herrick, the United States Ambassador to France, was imperilled today when a boiler in the building adjoining that occupied by the Herricks exploded. Mr. and Mrs. Herrick were not at home at the time, having left yesterday for Rome, where Mr. Herrick will attend the International agricultural congress next week. The building in which the explosion occurred was wrecked.

MOVE AGAINST NEW HAVEN'S FINANCIERS

Federal prosecution of every official of the New Haven Railroad connected with the methods of high finance which were revealed at the recent hearing at Boston will be demanded by the New England Governors at a conference they will seek with President Wilson and Attorney-General McReynolds.

Governor Baldwin of Connecticut is the only executive not joining in the demand. The mother of the Governors is to protect the stockholders. They will insist upon a reorganization being made, but in the manner least harmful to the thousands of security holders in New England.

New England Congressmen, according to today's Washington dispatches, express the belief that with the retirement of President Mellen and the reorganization of the railroad complaint against the New Haven would be eliminated. They welcome the appointment of a special government examiner as giving time for reorganization to be effected should President Mellen retire.

A statement by Attorney-General McReynolds that civil suits would be brought by the government indicates that the reorganization of the railroad management will not cause the government to abandon its prosecution of the officials already charged with having violated the anti-trust laws and whose case will come up soon in New York.

The Attorney-General made the positive statement civil suits are to be instituted because of the monopoly of transportation which has been shown already to exist in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Hint New Shakeup.

A shakeup of officials on the New Haven, just announced, is believed today to be preliminary to a still more extensive one on both that line and the Boston & Maine. The changes are declared to be part of the campaign for economy and improvement conducted by Operating Vice-President A. H. Whaley and General Manager C. S. Brado.

An order approved by President Mellen gave Chief Engineer Gagel charge of the engineering department, General Manager C. S. Brado was given charge of transportation, maintenance of equipment and buildings. Mechanical Superintendent G. W. Wildin was given charge of the Central New England Railway Company, with headquarters at New Haven.

The jurisdiction of W. J. Backus, engineer of maintenance of way, was extended to cover the Central New England Railway. A. S. Tuttle was named construction engineer in charge of grade crossing eliminations in Massachusetts, while W. H. Moore was named engineer of structures.

All the changes were in line of centralization of executive power.

Protest Train Lay Offs.

Widespread protest was heard today over the curtailment of service on the Fitchburg and Southern divisions of the Boston & Maine scheduled to be effective Monday.

All but seventeen much used trains will be affected by the annulments and partial annulments. The Railroad Commission has been asked by the Legislature to investigate and report in two weeks on the matter. Representative Tuttle, who commutes from Waltham, led in the demand for an inquiry.

The last train next Monday night for points west of Fitchburg on the Fitchburg division will leave Boston at 6:15 p. m. After that there will not be another train until 3:30 a. m.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

Stock markets were very dull today and the price tendency was downward. In New York leading stocks finished on an average about a quarter of a point lower. Reading was off more than a point because of the report that the government will use it because of its acquisition of Jersey Central and the latter's coal properties. Share transactions in New York for the whole morning session did not total 70,000.

Bid Boston coppers ranged lower with Wolverine ending 2¼ down, Boston Consols off a point and Shannon 1⅛ to the bad. Boston & Maine was unchanged at the finish, having recovered a point loss, and New Haven a shade lower. United Fruit declined a point.

There was no speculative interest manifested anywhere. The London and Berlin markets were closed and will be until Tuesday. Paris will shut down on Monday.

New York Bank Statement.

Today's New York bank statement in brief reads as follows: Average statement: Excess cash reserve $12,940,090, increase $1,337,850; loans, decrease, $6,832,000; specie, decrease, $836,000; legal tender, decrease, $91,000; net deposits, decrease, $10,620,000; circulation, increase, $231,000. Actual statement: Loans, decrease, $17,325,000; specie, decrease, $3,071,000; legal tenders, increase, $3,808,000; net deposits, decrease, $17,470,000; reserve, increase, $3,846,950.

Unfavorable Steel Report.

The statement of the United States Steel Corporation as to unfilled orders on its books at the end of April was much less favorable than expected. During the week it was predicted that the statement would show a decrease of about 200,000 tons. But the figures were 490,194 tons. The unfilled orders on April 31 totalled 6,078,702 tons. This compares with 7,468,896 tons on March 31, 7,654,714 tons on February 28, 7,827,308 tons on January 31, and 5,064,883 tons on April 30, 1912.

Trading Quiet in New York.

Delaware & Hudson was one of the weakest issues on the list at the opening of the stock market in New York, being sympathetically depressed by weakness in New York Central. Delaware & Hudson lost 1¼ lower and later declined still further. New York Central continued under pressure, selling at 99¾ a loss of ¾.

Trading was quiet and nearly all stocks suffered declines. Among losses were Steel common ⅛, Union Pacific ⅝, Reading ⅞, Erie ⅛, amalgamated ⅜, Baltimore & Ohio ⅝, St. Paul ⅝ and Canadian Pacific ⅛.

At the end of half an hour some of the losses rallied.

The curb was dull.

This was a bank holiday in London and there was no session of the stock exchange there.

Expects Sugar Trust Monopoly.

The fight over the Underwood tariff bill has begun in the Senate and Senator Smith of Michigan thinks free sugar will enable the Sugar Trust to get a complete monopoly. He believes that the new tariff will kill the beet sugar industry, which is one of the greatest in his State. He wants public hearings on the measure.

"After the Trust has run its competitors out of business, as they will under this law," said Mr. Smith, "and competition no longer exists, the price of sugar will be increased to what it was before beet sugar was discovered. If you intend to withdraw from circulation all the money invested in sugar production and turn it over to foreigners, it ought to be done in the open. Give the people a chance to be heard, and do not do this in the dark and gloom of a secret chamber.

"If this question were to be submitted to the people today you would be repudiated and thrown from office. The American people are not for free trade, and that's what you are endeavoring to force upon them."

Stock of An Old Company.

Hayden, Stone & Co. are offering $1,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the Robert Gair Company of New York, which is the largest manufacturer in the world of coverings and some other paper goods. It is also one of the oldest, having been in operation since 1864. Its plant is one of the East River landmarks in New York, being right beside the Manhattan Bridge on the Brooklyn side and covering an area of five blocks. "The recent appraisal of our real estate," said President Gair in speaking of the company's New York city holdings, "declared its value at $2,082,404, which is in excess of our total issue of preferred stock. Such sections of our buildings as are not in use in our industry afford an annual income of $72,000 in rental. For the past seven years our net profits were equal to 13½ per cent. on the $2,000,000 preferred stock; for the past two years, 19½ per cent.; and for the year ending January 31st, 1913, they amounted to almost 21 per cent."

Financial News in Brief.

For the fiscal year ending with March, the American Beet Sugar Company reports total receipts of $6,588,787, a decrease of $2,466,469 from the previous year; expenses, $3,657,731, a decrease of $1,021,889; balance for dividends, $881,056, a decrease of $1,444,518.

Dun's Review says: "Bank exchanges this week are in fairly well-maintained volume, the total at all leading cities in the United States aggregating $3,006,- 658,475, which shows a loss of 0.7 per cent, as compared with the $3,029,025,059 of the same week last year, but an increase of no less than 15.5 per-cent. over the $2,655,796,093 of the corresponding week in 1911.

The new executive committee of the M. Rumely Company consists of Clarence S. Funk, James A. Patten, Elihu Walker and John H. Gay. The Rumelys have been ousted from the management.

In prosecuting the hard coal trust, the government will sue the Reading Company for acquiring in 1901 the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the latter's coal companies.

The Harris Brothers Company will open the Berlin bourse was closed today and will not reopen until Tuesday. The Paris bourse will shut down on Monday.

Practically all leading copper producers and sellers have advanced the price of electrolytic to 15¾, equal to a pound for both domestic and foreign trade. It is said that the demand from all quarters continues heavy. In some circles a further price advance is expected next week.

enter the mail order field with a capitalization of $10,000,000. It is a combination of the Chicago House Wrecking Company, the Harris Home Company and the Harris Steel & Wire Company—three going concerns.

The City Realty Company has bought 81,000 square feet bordering on the Charles River parkway and just across the river from the Stadium, and intends to soon construct upon the property a modern, high-grade apartment building of brick and stone. It is said that on April 1 the trust was earning at the rate of three and one-half times its fixed charges. It is operating in improved real estate in Boston and its suburbs and owns stores, business and apartment buildings. The trustees are said to expect to declare an extra dividend this year, besides the regular quarterly ones.

In distribution of Waltsmuhle holidays the London Stock Exchange is closed today and will not reopen until Tuesday.

Abbot M. McGuire, a lawyer of Chicago have taken over the holdings of the Alaska Bonanger's Parking Company for about $500,000.

From a letter of Robert Gair, President of this company, we summarize as follows:

The Company is the largest manufacturer in the world of paper coverings, folding boxes, etc., and has been in successful operation since 1864.

The plant consists of five large factories and power-house in Brooklyn, N. Y., covering five acres of land and having twenty-five acres of floor space.

The New York City real estate owned by the Company is appraised for more than the entire issue of Preferred Stock.

Net tangible assets, exclusive of good will are equivalent to $253 on each share of Preferred Stock.

Net earnings for the past seven years have averaged 13⅓ % on the Preferred Stock; for the past two years 19½ %; and for the year ended January 31, 1913, were almost 21 %.

The business is not subject to tariff changes.

The property has been appraised by the Manufacturers Appraisal Company, and the books and accounts audited by Price, Waterhouse & Co.

Price, 100 and accrued dividend, yielding 7%

Japan's National Policy Is 3 Dreadnoughts Strong Is America Good for Only 1?

The United States has ordered ONE big battleship to be laid down this year. Japan has just ordered THREE.

Our one next dreadnought, the Pennsylvania, will have a displacement of 31,500 tons. The next three Japanese dreadnoughts will have a displacement of 90,000 tons.

Our next dreadnought will carry TWELVE 14-inch guns. The next three Japanese dreadnoughts will carry THIRTY-SIX 15-inch guns, if no more deadly gun is invented in time for them.

Our one next dreadnought will cost about 14 millions of dollars. The next three Japanese dreadnoughts will cost at least 39 millions of dollars.

The United States is a rich nation, with 100 millions of people. Japan is a poor nation, with 55 millions of people. All Japan put together is a tiny bit bigger than the one State of California. But the NATIONAL SPIRIT AND AMBITION OF JAPAN is very, very BIG, and the Japanese people are patriotic enough to make any sacrifice for it they can possibly afford.

The national spirit of Japan is THREE DREADNOUGHTS BIG this year. Is the national spirit of the United States only ONE DREADNOUGHT BIG?

At this rate of progress the United States could soon be swept off the Pacific Ocean and San Francisco and Seattle made coaling stations for the Japanese Imperial Navy.

The United States is now controlled by the Democratic party. That party must have a patriotic, national policy. Any injury to the United States would be an injury to the highest civilization ever attained in the world's history. Any party that invited such an injury would have violated not only the most solemn trust ever placed upon a nation's government, but a most solemn trust for humanity at large.

Let the Democratic party declare its patriotic, national policy. Let it tell the country how big its policy is and how it is going to EXPRESS that policy in action NOW.

Otherwise, and as soon as may be, let the Democratic party be deprived by the people of the opportunity of ever again interfering in national affairs.

A Few Good Reasons Why You Should Read Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN

We offer today a little hint at a FEW of the reasons why you MUST be sure to TAKE HOME A COPY OF THE SUNDAY AMERICAN.

SO MANY features have been prepared by Sunday AMERICAN editors, and writers, and artists, and photographers for tomorrow that a selection is EMBARRASSING. HOWEVER:

Books Have Been Written About "FLETCHER, the Palmist"

One of these books may be found in the Boston Public Library. It was written by Susan E. Gay. It was published in London. It is called "JOHN WILLIAM FLETCHER, CLAIRVOYANT." Reading this book, one would like to know more about the palmist's wife, SUSAN WILLIS FLETCHER, who "came three thousand miles across the Atlantic to face Bow Street, the Central Criminal Court, conviction, public condemnation, and an English prison, to VINDICATE THE TRUTH!"

Everybody interested in Spiritualism—the "pro's" as well as the "anti's"—will be moved by the Sunday AMERICAN'S story of John William Fletcher, palmist, who killed himself in his splendid suite in Boylston street last month on the appearance of Boston policemen with a warrant for his arrest.

Ever Hold a Sunshade Over the Manly Brow of a SWAMI?

Ever go into the garden to pick vegetables for a brown-skinned preacher from British India? Does the dear man like costly raiment? Does he revel in the company of the ladies? And, Oh, Girls! DOES he like his toddy?

We have with us in Boston MR. RUSTOM RUSTOMJEE, THE FAMOUS PARSEE EDITOR OF BOMBAY, INDIA. We have put the case of the Swamis and their friends up to Brother Rustomjee. And what, do you suppose, the Bombay newspaper man says of certain mystic "doings" in New England?

"BUNK!"

Read RUSTOMJEE ON THE SWAMIS, in the Sunday AMERICAN!

The Rich Boys Have Quit Marrying Footlight Favorites

NOW they are making "sensible" matches, at least IN BOSTON.

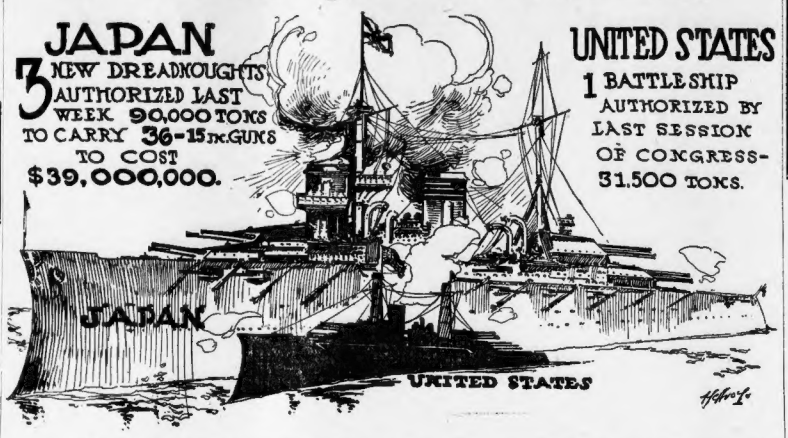
HERE, telephone girls and stenographers appear to have the best "chances."

The Back Bay would be up in arms if its sons were chasing after "silly nobodies," but the boys are doing NOTHING OF THE KIND. In certain cases, they HAVE been marrying beautiful working girls, home girls, "mother's" girls, with nothing "against" them but the meagreness of daddy's account at the National Shawmut.

A writer in the Sunday AMERICAN discusses SOME OF THE RECENT ALLIANCES OF THE BACK BAY WITH THE SWITCHBOARD AND THE BACK BAY WITH THE "REMINGTON."

YOU should find the story interesting. WE believe you will.

Three to One Against the United States



How the ONE battleship ordered to be laid down by the United States this year will compare with the THREE just ordered to be laid down at once in home shipyards by Japan.

A Yankee Bride's Thrilling Experiences in the Garden of Allah

Mrs. Robert Perkins Bass of Peterborough, wife of the young former Governor of New Hampshire, has just returned from a visit to the Turkish-Italian battlefields of Tripoli. Governor and Mrs. Bass were the first "foreigners" to visit the country after the close of the war.

Edith Bird Bass is the wife of one Governor and the daughter of the Progressive candidate in Massachusetts, Charles Sumner Bird of Walpole. She was a member of the Vincent Club. Nobody in that famous organization was surprised at the announcement of "Edith Bird's" daring trip. "The desert was simply wonderful," Mrs. Bass tells Angela Morgan. Miss Morgan has written a WONDERFUL story for the Sunday AMERICAN about a "Yankee Girl's Honeymoon in the Desert."

"If I Were the Devil!"

"What Would I Do?" B. FAY MILLS, the great evangelistic preacher, known from Maine to California and now in Boston again, ASKS this question and ANSWERS it EXCLUSIVELY IN THE SUNDAY AMERICAN. Mr. Mills is the author of "Power From on High" and "Victory Through Surrender." We recommend his "If I Were the Devil" to every food adulterator, every crooked legislator and every anti-suffragist in New England.

$2,520,000
756,000
$1,764,000

What's this all about? Well, the top line represents THE MARKET VALUE OF 14,000 SHARES OF BOSTON & MAINE WHEN MR. MELLEN AND HIS ASSOCIATES SECURED CONTROL of the "Maine" in 1907.

The second line represents THE MARKET VALUE OF THESE SAME SHARES TODAY.

This block of shares is held by the members of ONE BOSTON FAMILY.

Haven't they a right to discuss the MALADMINISTRATION OF THE BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD? One of them DOES discuss it, in the Sunday AMERICAN, and if you want to understand just what has been done to the Boston & Maine Railroad you MUST have this story. AND THIS, REMEMBER, DOES NOT HALF TELL THE STORY.

The Country

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

FAR from the lulling song of the elevated trains, the glad cries of the traffic policeman to the patient truck driver, the pleasant perfume of the gas mains, and the joyous tumult of the tunnel crush is a strange, weird region called The Country.

Keep away from it! For miles and miles you may wander its monotonous green wastes and never hear the reverberating music of a pneumatic riveter or the thrilling shriek of a trolley car rounding a curve. For days and days you may wait in vain for the hospitable greeting of a tunnel guard inviting you to step into his car and assuring you courteously that there is plenty of room inside. You will miss the kindly warning of the chauffeur as you crawl from beneath the wheels of his car; your heart will be heavy with homesickness for the freshly turned earth on the torn up streets, and the dainty plank walks around excavations for new buildings—walks roofed in with two by twelves, on which falling steel scantlings beat a steady and exciting tattoo.

There are no flats in the country. There are no gala block-long displays of family washing swung between brick dwellings, like the fluttering pennants on a holiday-dressed man of war. No safes destined for the thirty-second story of a highly thatched skyscraper part their hawsers and come hurtling down to the pavement, to provide edification to all near by populace save that portion that happens to be directly underneath.

The New York Suffrage Parade—It Was a History Making Spectacle and Marks the Exit of the Doll Baby Woman from the Stage of Life

WHAT did they see who watched the big Suffrage Parade in New York?

They saw the first real democracy of woman.

They saw Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady marching shoulder to shoulder. They saw the petted darling of the drawing room walking side by side with the girl of the sweatshop.

In that procession were millionairesses keeping step with scrubwomen; college professors with the pupils of night schools; Fifth avenue hostesses with waitresses from cheap lunch rooms; old women with withered cheeks and gray hair with girls in the first flush and bloom of youth and beauty. All lines of wealth and class and social distinction were wiped out by the great cause that touches every woman high and low, and that has brought them together in one great sisterhood.

What did they see when they watched the Suffrage Parade?

They saw one of the spectacles that make history. They saw the passing of the old order of things and the entrance of the new.

They saw the exit from the stage of life of the doll baby woman of the past, of the woman who could find the whole of life in adorning herself, whose interests were no wider than her own home, and who saw no shame in getting what she wanted out of some man by cajolery, or flattery, or lying, or whatever other means was necessary.

Dull, indeed, were the eyes that did not see in those thousands and thousands of earnest-faced women the type of the new womanhood that is marching onward to a place beside man, no more to be his toy and plaything, but his equal and his partner in doing the work of the world and reaping its rewards.

They saw the spectre of injustice marching in every woman's shadow. The crowds through which those ten thousand white-clad women tramped were mostly silent, as well they might be with shame if they had eyes to see and a heart to comprehend the significance of the scene.

They saw women who owned millions of dollars worth of property, but who were denied the right to say what taxes should be levied upon their property. They saw the representatives of six million working women, but who have no power in shaping the legislation that affected them.

No one except those who took part in it know what courage, what sacrifice of personal inclination, it took for quiet, dignified, reserved women to tramp the streets, and make themselves a public spectacle for hundreds of thousands of curious eyes, and to be the butt of cheap wits and village cut-ups.

To most of the women every step of the way was the way of the cross, but they trod it unfalteringly, because there was no other means that could so effectually carry the message they had to give to the public. It was a spectacle that made even the dullest think.

The School Boys of Today Should Read About the School Boys of Revolutionary Days

In old Colonial days the Latin Grammar School of Boston was situated on School street. The grammar school boys had a coast on the hill. One day the British soldiers destroyed that coast.

Have you ever read, master school boy, what your forefathers in the Boston Grammar School did on that occasion? If you ever knew, it is apparent from your recent disorderliness that you have forgotten the high example which the grammar school boys of Boston set for you one hundred and forty years ago. You should know, and the AMERICAN will tell you, that these old-fashioned school boys did not abuse the soldiers or snowball them or break the general's windows, although the general lived on School street, right by the coast.

History does not record a single violent or disorderly act on the part of those school boys. But history does record the orderly, manly, dignified manner in which those boys proceeded to obtain a redress of their grievance against the British soldiers. They met, they formed a committee and, under the leaders they had chosen, they QUIETLY and PEACEABLY and in good order marched to General Haldimand's house and there they presented to the British commander an account of their grievance and with honor and dignity demanded that it be redressed. IT WAS REDRESSED, because the quiet force of their behavior had impressed the British commander. When he reported the case to General Gage, his superior officer, he observed that the SPIRIT OF LIBERTY COULD NOT BE CRUSHED EVEN OUT OF THE CHILDREN.

Now do our modern school boys believe that these old-time lads would have had their coast restored to them by the British soldiers if they had snowballed the red coats and broken the general's windows and abused him and catcalled him?

The boys of this generation should realize that PEACE and ORDER is the law of nature; that license is not liberty and the absence of all self-restraint is not freedom. Revolutionary processes are always last resorts. Many things can be accomplished by an orderly method which cannot be brought about through disorder, and where both methods may accomplish the result, the orderly method is always far more efficient. Even where questions of vital human rights are concerned, wise men have always found it WISEST to exhaust the PEACABLE and ORDERLY means of attaining the right, before they resort to the last reason of kings.

If the fathers of these school boys of old had not been wise men, we should probably not today be a great and independent nation. As they set forth in their Declaration of Independence, King George had "plundered our seas, ravished our coasts, burnt our towns and destroyed the lives of our people. He constrained our fellow-citizens to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren or to fall themselves by their hands. He has excited domestic insurrections among us and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontier the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions."

Yet our forefathers did not attempt to redress this terrible grievance by violence and disorder until they had exhausted the methods of peace and order. They continue in their Declaration of Independence thus: "IN EVERY STAGE OF THESE OPPRESSIONS WE HAVE PETITIONED FOR REDRESS IN THE MOST HUMBLE TERMS. OUR REPEATED PETITIONS HAVE BEEN ANSWERED BY REPEATED INJURY."
